ACCIDENT DAMAGE

Debris from a shattered utility pole is strewn across Garey Avenue in Pomona after being sheared off in an accident this morning. In the background firemen give first aid to the woman driver, who suffered neck injuries and was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. Her car was northbound when it swerved onto the sidewalk near Jefferson Avenue and struck the pole head-on. Hot electrical wires briefly dangled across the busy street.

Holiday returns to low-key normality

By The Associated Press

July 4, 1977: Bicentennial plus one. For most Americans, this Fourth of July was a return to low-key normality.

In most places the spirit was light-hearted. Billy Carter, the President's brother, appeared at a World Champion Pole Climbing Contest and played softball in Lexington, Tenn. There were fireworks and rallies, picnics and concerts, regattas and parades throughout the land. And few dissenters anywhere.

Racial turmoil, Vietnam, Watergate seemed echoes of the past. And most people weren't listening.

Instead, Air Force demonstration jets screamed over the Statue of Liberty and tiny racing sailboats slapped the waters of New York Harbor. Under sunny skies in Tuscaloosa, Ala., there were arts and crafts, games for all ages, softball, rock music and bluegrass.

Night skies exploded with fireworks over the Hudson River in New York, the Charles River in Boston, the Mall in Washington, D.C. — and over Muscle Shoals, Ala., and countless small towns.

Actor John Cullum did the traditional reading of the Declaration of Independence at Federal Hall on Wall Street in New York. Four or five thousand people stood — intent, respectful.

Vatican urges bishops to seek government funds for schools

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican urged the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church for the first time today to seek government funds to support their parochial school systems. It said Catholic schools are a necessary counterbalance to modern secularism and a guarantee of religious freedom.

The Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education issued a 10,000-word document which also criticized some Catholic school systems for catering mostly to the rich; urged priests, brothers and nuns not to abandon teaching, and insisted that the church's schools must meet high professional standards.

A spokesman confirmed that it was the Vatican's first public advocacy of government financial support for parochial schools though many bishops have agitated for such aid for years. The spokesman said it took the Congregation for Education five years to prepare the document.

The document noted that some governments already provide financial support to Catholic schools and "guarantee both the preservation of the special status of the Catholic school and its ability to perform its function adequately.

"Catholic schools are thereby more or less closely associated with the national system," the document continued, "and are assured of an economic and juridical status similar to state schools ....

"These solutions are an encouragement to those responsible for Catholic schools in countries where the Catholic community must still shoulder a very heavy burden of cost to maintain an often highly important network of Catholic schools."

The document said the church must "mobilize her educational resources in the face of the materialism, pragmatism and technocracy of contemporary society." It said Catholic schools help "promote that freedom of teaching which champions and guarantees freedom of conscience and the parental right to choose the school best suited to a parent's educational purposes."

In a major decision last week, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that states who want to funnel more tax money into parochial education may do so by loaning textbooks, supplements and a variety of services to children in church-operated schools. In so doing, the high court eased up a bit on the doctrine of separation of church and state.

The document warned against schools that cater primarily to the rich, even though lack of government financial support may be a cause of this.

"Since education is an important means of improving the social and economic condition of the indivdual and of peoples," it said, "if the Catholic school were to turn its attention exclusively or predominantly to those from the wealthier social classes, it could be contributing toward maintaining their privileged position."

Hit and run fatal to Chino youth

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A 14-year-old Chino youth was struck and killed by a hit-and-run driver Monday night as he walked along the shoulder of Euclid Avenue near Chino Avenue in Chino, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Dead at the scene was Danny Abbott.

Highway patrolmen said the youth suffered multiple fatal injuries. They estimated the hit-and-run driver struck the youth while traveling "at a very high rate of speed."

Patrolmen, a short time after the 10:45 p.m. accident, arrested Joe Carlos Martins, 19, 13233 18th St., Chino, for investigation of vehicular manslaughter and driving while under the influence of an intoxicant.

Martins, arrested at his home, was booked at the West End jail this morning in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Patrolmen said Martins told officers he was "fooling around" with several other cars southbound on Euclid Avenue when he decided to pass the other vehicles on the right. He was quoted by officers as saying he saw "something white" and "heard a bump" when he passed the other cars.

Martins told officers he did not return to the scene of the accident because he was afraid.

Patrolmen said the accident is under investigation.

KKK chief vows return in September, to meet violence with violence

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Flagstaffs, signboards, eggs and fists were thrown as about 100 young demonstrators broke up a Ku Klux Klan antibusing rally on the steps of the Statehouse.

State police restored order quickly, and Ku Klux Klan Imperial Wizard Dale Reusch, 38, vowed to return in September. He said he would "meet violence with violence."

The July 4th melee here was the second Klan rally broken up violently over the holiday weekend.

In Plains, Ga., President Carter's hometown, Saturday night, Buddy Cochran injured 30 persons, 19 of whom were admitted to hospital, when he drove his sports car through a crowd of 250 persons into a platform on which Bill Wilkinson, imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan, was speaking.

The 30-year-old auto mechanic from Americus, Ga., about 10 miles west of Plains, was charged with aggravated assault and held on $190,000 bond.

Some 300 persons protesting the Columbus rally paraded on the outskirts of the state capitol grounds Monday, but when Reusch began his speech, about 100 protesters moved up the steps.

"You talk sick," one man told Reusch.

"We will go on with the rally regardless of the agitation," replied Reusch.

Holding a can of chemical skin irritant for self defense in one hand and a microphone in the other, and flanked by about 20 supporters, Reusch resumed his speech.

The protesters pressed forward, knocking Reusch to the ground. Klansmen, who wielded flagstaffs like baseball bats, took advantage of their higher ground atop the steps.

The protesters smashed the public address system and peppered Reusch and Klansmen with eggs, chanting "Ku Klux Klan, scum of the land."

Reusch was spat upon and stripped of his hooded purple Klan robe. He was cut in the face during the fracas. A television cameraman also was injured slightly.

Arrested were: George Preston, 29, of Cincinnati, charged with inciting to violence; Brenda Hutchinson, 18, of Columbus, charged with disturbing a lawful meeting; and Annette Beauchamp, 17, cited with a deliquency charge of disturbing a lawful meeting.

Reusch said he would seek a state permit to hold a rally at the same place in September, after he seeks advice from the American Civil Liberties Union on how to insure free speech.

Asked what his message was to have been, Reusch said, "The Klan will fight. We will kill. We have to rebuild."

Gas fumes fell 60 in underground garage

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — More than 60 persons who were headed home after a July 4th fireworks display at Independence Mall were overcome by carbon monoxide gas in an underground parking garage.

"We took so many people out we really couldn't keep count," said a fire department spokesman at the garage Monday night.

Several hospitals in the area treated the gas victims.

Firemen wearing oxygen masks entered the three-level garage, which holds 650 cars, shortly after the first alarm was sounded. They ordered motorists to turn off their car engines and flee.

Many persons were carried outside on stretchers. Others were given oxygen as they sat on the sidewalk.

"It was really bad down there," said one teen-ager. "People were passing out and vomiting."

"The blowers just couldn't handle it," said a spokesman for the J&L Parking Co., which manages the facility for the city.

"This is the kind of thing that is beyond anybody's control," said the spokesman. "Everybody tried to get out at the same time, the people just couldn't get out. The streets above were jammed with traffic. The people couldn't get out."

The problem was compounded when several motorists, in line at the garage exit, abandoned their vehicles to be rescued by ambulance.

It took police department tow trucks nearly two hours to clear the abandoned cars from the exit ramp.

The fire department spokesman said the problem probably was compounded by Monday's 90-degree temperatures and high humidity.

Ordeal leaves 2 dead, 3 injured

Hijacker says he took over bus because he was broke

NEW YORK (AP) — An embittered 26-year-old seaman charged with initiating a siege of terror that left two dead aboard a hijacked bus and nearly paralyzed a giant airport told police today he took over the bus because he was broke.

Sources close to the investigation told The Associated Press that Luis Robinson told them he was headed back to his ship, the USS Detroit, based in Bath, Maine, but only had enough money for bus fare to Hartford, Conn.

Robinson was booked today on charges that he hijacked the bus, shot two people to death, injured three others, then held authorities at bay during the siege for about nine hours at holiday-crowded John F. Kennedy International Airport.

He surrendered shortly before midnight after unsuccessfully demanding $6 million and a plane to fly him to Cuba.

Robinson was to be arraigned on the charges later today.

The sources quoted Robinson, born in Panama and living in Somerset, N.J., as saying he boarded the Vermont-bound bus, undecided whether to commandeer it or get off in Hartford and hitchhike to Maine.

Meanwhile, the New York Post quoted a source today as saying Robinson told police he had been inspired by a dream. "He said it came to him in a dream, he had to do this," the source said. "He said the country was going into chaos and somebody had to do something to stop it."

Police also said Robinson told investigators that he had experienced problems with "people who picked on him" aboard his ship.

In New Jersey, Robinson's mother, Doris, today expressed grief for her son's alleged actions. "How could you be killing people? I don't understand. I don't understand," she said.

Robinson's father, Ernesto, said he last saw his son two or three months ago. "I don't know what led to this," he said, his voice shaking.

For most of the 25 passengers aboard the bus, the first sign of trouble came after the bus left the Port Authority terminal in midtown Manhattan. The gunman fired a .45-caliber pistol at a college librarian, then forced him to move to the front of the bus, bleeding from the neck.

"This is what's going to happen to you if you don't do what I say," the gunman told the passengers as he ordered the driver to turn toward Kennedy Airport.

Later, after the bus had crashed through an airport fence and the hijacker had killed a woman passenger and the driver and dumped them onto a runway, passenger Bruce Deboer, 17, of East Hartford, Conn., was ordered to drive the bus.

"I decided, as did the other passengers, that it wouldn't pay off to try and rush him," said Deboer.

Deboer was ordered to drive after Norman Bozick, the 41-year-old driver of the Vermont Transit Co. bus, was fatally wounded.

Leslie Van Houten—was she a robot?

Jury will decide this week

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leslie Van Houten's chances for immediate freedom this week hinged on whether her attorney could convince a second jury that she was a Charles Manson-dominated robot when she stabbed a dead woman eight years ago.

In closing arguments scheduled for today, attorney Maxwell Keith planned to ask the Superior Court jury to reject a first-degree murder charge and convict the 27-year-old woman of manslaughter in the Tate-LaBianca slayings.

For that conviction, he would have to prove "that there was no malice aforethought, that she wasn't aware of what she was doing and didn't understand her duty to obey the law."

A manslaughter conviction would probably mean her release from prison, because she has served nearly eight years since her arrest in 1969 and conviction in 1971. Even if her first-degree murder conviction were repeated, she could be eligible for parole.

She is charged with murder in the deaths of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca and conspiracy in the slayings of actress Sharon Tate and four others. Her original conviction was overturned by the state Supreme Court because her attorney died on a camping trip during the trial.

During the 10 weeks of testimony in the second trial, Keith has tried to stress the change in Miss Van Houten from a 19-year-old Manson follower who giggled, shouted and shaved her head during the first trial to a calm, attractive, contrite young woman today.

"Everyone who has had contact with her — doctors, psychiatrists, teachers — say she is certainly no threat to society," Keith said.

Defense witnesses described Miss Van Houten's teen-aged transformation from a homecoming queen to a drug-taking member of the Manson family. When she herself took the stand, she said her mind was clouded by LSD during her years with Manson.

She admitted that she stabbed Mrs. LaBianca, but after the woman was dead. She said Manson follower Charles "Tex" Watson handed her a knife and told her to stab the body.

State unemployment fund dangerously low?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state's unemployment insurance fund—boosted by a $600 million increase in employer payroll taxes in 1975 — would be unable to withstand a major recession, a new report says.

Milliman and Robertson Inc., an independent actuarial firm, studied the fund through 1975 and said in its recently released report that reserves were less than 1 per cent of total wages paid in the state.

That's the lowest in the fund's 40-year history. The reserves had been as high as 6.3 per cent in recent years, but dipped to 2 per cent at the end of 1974.

The legislature then acted quickly to increase employer taxes by $600 million.

Because of expanding benefits and eligibility, the actuaries say, even another payroll tax increase of that magnitude would have difficulty making the fund capable of withstanding a major recession.

The firm said that increasing payroll taxes during a recession could hinder recovery from the recession.

Under law, when the fund falls below 2.5 per cent of total wages paid in the state, there is a shift to a higher schedule of payroll taxes.

The report suggested that the fund reserves be built up during periods of prosperity. The law should allow a 4 per cent "trigger" instead of 2.5 per cent, it said.

"The current 2.5 per cent trigger is politically acceptable, but is a reflection of a goal for a fund just able during a high cost period to provide the legislature with sufficient time to increase taxes," the report said.

No bail court pilot project called a big success

PASADENA (AP) — Persons released without bail in a three-month pilot project came to court as promised and generally did not cause further police problems.

The project, conducted by local law enforcement officials and the County Bar Association, showed that none of the 100 persons released on their own recognizance willfully failed to appear at their arraignment. Two of the 100 were rearrested on other charges before arraignment.

No charges were filed against 53 per cent of those released and 41 per cent had their charges reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor, the study showed.

A third were let go within six hours of being booked, and 90 per cent were out in 24 hours, compared to two or three days under current procedures.

In addition, 41 per cent of the 100 released were unemployed and 16 per cent were earning less than the monthly minimum wage scale of $400.

State briefs

Streamline

LOS ANGELES (AP) — City Administrative Officer C. Erwin Piper has proposed a revisions of city governing, involving the scrapping of five city departments, including the Public Works department.

In a report released after Mayor Tom Badley's pledge to reform government, Piper criticized the 70-year-old Public Works department.

Child abuse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county grand jury has recommended special child abuse programs for police, physicians and social workers that would help them alleviate an "alarming problem."

Last year, 3,578 abused or neglected children became wards of the court, the grand jury's Social Services Committee said Monday.

Copter crash

ASH MOUNTAIN (AP) — A National Park Service helicopter trying to recover the body of a climber was whipped by strong gusts and crashed in the southern Sierra Nevada, injuring two searchers.

Inyo County sheriff's deputies said the two men, Pat Elliott and Bob Pfeil, both of Bishop, received only minor injuries.

4 hurt in post fireworks shooting

LONG BEACH (AP) — Police say four persons were shot by two men who may have been "just showing off" after a July Fourth fireworks display.

Arrested and booked for suspicion of attempted murder were Craig Wright, 18, and his brother, Jeffrey, both of Long Beach. Two teenage girls found with Jeffrey Wright are being questioned.

Two children who had been watching the display Monday night were shot as they sat in boats about 200 feet offshore, said police Lt. Jerry Lance.

The children were shot when two men on the beach fired across the harbor, police said. "They weren't shooting at anybody, and may have just been showing off," Lance said.

Themen then argued with a couple on the beach, and shot Charles Glover, 30, in the earlobe, police said. Glover's wife escaped injury. Gunfire also wounded 32 year-old Bernard Kinzer in the leg as he stood on the beach.

Eleven year-old William Edrard of Long Beach, shot in the lower back, was in serious condition at St. Mary Medical Center. Glover, Kinzer and an unidentified eight year-old girl who was shot in her left thigh werein good condition at Long Beach Community Hospital.

Pakistan under martial law after coup

SWEEPSTAKES WINNER

About 100 students attending summer session at Condit Elementary School marched in the Fourth of July parade at Claremont Monday as flowers, trees, and even the sun and rainbow, and were awarded the sweepstakes trophy, tops in the annual festivity. They combined the day's theme of "America is Beautiful" with the parade theme of "Our Country is . . ." to come up with the award winning "Our Country is Beautiful."

Army arrests Bhutto, promises new election

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Pakistan army, promising fresh elections in October, put Pakistan under martial law today after taking control of the government and arresting Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, Radio Pakistan said.

In an address to the nation, broadcast by the radio and monitored here, army chief of staff Gen. Muhammed Ziaul Haq said President Fazal Elahi Choudhry would continue as head of state.

Ziaul said he had taken over as chief martial law administrator in order to assure that free and fair elections are possible in October.

"The Bhutto regime has ended," said the 52-year-old general whom Bhutto installed last year as chief of staff.

He announced dissolution of the National Assembly and state assemblies and removal from office of all cabinet ministers and state governors.

An earlier announcement of the coup by Radio Pakistan said Bhutto and other political leaders had been placed in "temporary protective custody." The coup followed four months of political unrest and a threat of new violence between supporters and foes of Bhutto.

The broadcast said those arrested were from both Bhutto's Pakistan People's party and the opposition Pakistan National Alliance. But only Bhutto was identified.

It was believed that the army's leaders would be reluctant to retain control for a prolonged period because of the difficulties the military had when it was in power from 1958 until December 1971.

Military rule then was brought down by economic decline, the secession movement in East Pakistan, student disturbances, political and economic discontent and the army's defeat by the Indian Army in the December, 1971, war which made East Pakistan the new nation of Bangladesh.

The last military president, Gen. Mohammed Yahya Khan, resigned immediately after the war, and Bhutto, the head of the largest party in the National Assembly and the leading politician in what was left of the country, became president. In 1973, when a new constitution restored parliamentary government and made the presidency a ceremonial figurehead, he became prime minister.

Bhutto's troubles began with a landslide victory for his party in the National Assembly elections March 7, the first Pakistani elections since 1970. The People's party won 155 seats to 33 for the Pakistan National Alliance, a nine-party coalition, and the opposition showing was even less than the government controlled press had predicted.

The Alliance charged Bhutto and his party with large-scale ballot-box stuffing and intimidation of the voters. It demanded new elections and pressed the demand with a general strike and demonstrations which speedily turned into riots and bloody battles between the rioters and the police and between the foes and supporters of the prime minister.

More than 300 persons were killed, and Bhutto put the major cities under martial law and arrested most of the leaders of the Alliance. The violence died down after Bhutto agreed to negotiations to arrange new elections. But the negotiations dragged on, and there were four incidents of political violence last week in which several persons were injured.

12 hurt in July 4 Pomona accident

Twelve persons were injured in July 4th traffic in Pomona with one of the accidents involving the collision of an automobile and a Rapid Transit District bus.

That accident was at Ganesha Boulevard and Orange Grove Avenue at 4 p.m. Police reported that the auto, driven by Edward G. Trice, 30, of Pomona, turned left in front of the bus driven by Robert W. Bingham, 37, of Monrovia. Bingham, who complained of a shoulder injury, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital as were two passengers in Trice's car, John Williams, 14, and Ronnie Everly, 34, both of Pomona. Williams, who had broken wrists, was transferred to County-USC Medical Center for further treatment.

Trice was treated for cuts and bruises and was booked on suspicion of felonious drunken driving, according to police.

Seven other persons were injured in a two-car collision late Monday afternoon at White Avenue north of Val Vista Avenue near Ganesha Park.

Police reported that a car driven by Pomonan William A. Holtzman, 54, struck the rear of a moving auto driven by Henry Smith, 32, of Inglewood, crossed into the southbound lanes of White Avenue and hit a parked car.

Smith and several passengers in his car were treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. They were Rushan Smith, 7, Inglewood, Alexis-Angelich Lavigne, 4, Inglewood, Merris Earline Lavigne, 25, Inglewood, Kami J. Smith, 12, Pomona, Stephanie J. Hardie, 9, Pomona, and Gregory K. Hart, 8, Pomona.

Holtzman was quoted by police as saying that he had taken medication for a nervous condition that day. He was arrested.

Pomona gasoline station robbed

A young man armed with a pistol robbed Sav-Mor Gas at 1187 W. Mission Blvd., Pomona, shortly after 8 p.m. Monday.

An employe told police he was alone when the man knocked on the office door, pulled a small revolver and demanded money when he opened it.

The robber was described as white, 20, 5 feet 10 and 180 pounds. He had long, blond hair parted in the middle and wore a white T-shirt and bluejeans.

Although he fled on foot, he may have ridden away on a motorcycle parked nearby, police said.

Nazis, Jews headed for confrontation

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — American Nazis, barred by court order from marching here on Independence Day, were outmanned 40-to-1 by militant Jews. But both Nazi and anti-Nazi leaders believe the strength of Nazism in America has grown.

Besides an injunction, three village ordinances blocked members of the National Socialist Congress from demonstrating at the Skokie Village Hall.

But leaders of the militant Jewish Defense League said the law eventually will allow the Nazis to march in this community where 7,000 survivors of World World II Nazi concentration camps live.

"Laws have never protected Jews. They are just used to lull us into a false sense of security," Ralph Locher, chairman of the JDL's Chicago chapter, told an anti-Nazi rally here.

Locher said the JDL warned of a Nazi threat three years ago. "Now you see that it is real and will spread from the streets of Skokie to New York, Los Angeles and Chicago unless we stop it."

JDL founder Rabbi Meir Kahane told the rally that the courts eventually would give the Nazis "the freedom to end freedom."

Motorcyclist injured in crash

A motorcycle rider was injured slightly Monday evening in Claremont when he ran into the rear of a car stopped at Indian Hill Boulevard north of Seventh Street, police reported.

The rider, Kenneth E. Cantwell, 16, of Claremont, suffered a leg injury and was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police said that the driver of the auto, Suzanne F. Kovacs, 22, of Claremont, had stopped for a red traffic signal when the accident occurred.

CHP probed 48 accidents in valley

The California Highway Patrol investigated 48 valley accidents, mostly non-injury, over the Fourth of July weekend holiday.

Patrolmen this morning were seeking a brown, late-model Cadillac that rear-ended another car on the San Bernardino Freeway east of Indian Hill Boulevard injuring three persons.

Those injured are Ella L. Miller, 40, Los Angeles, driver of the damaged car; her son, Timothy, 22, and his wife, Belinda, 20, both of Torrance.

Patrolmen said the Millers were taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment.

Patrolmen said the Cadillac was traveling at a high rate of speed when it hit the Miller car, causing it to go out of control and roll over. They said the car skidded more than 200 feet on its top.

Suspect dies of gunshot

A 21-year-old La Puente man, a suspect in the recent wounding of a California Highway Patrolman, has died in San Bernardino County Hospital of gunshot wounds.

He was Nick Cardiel who was wounded in the incident June 18 near Barstow in which the officer, John A. Lopez, was wounded with his own pistol. A second man arrested in the shooting, Ronald Torres, 19, of Pasadena, and Cardiel were accused of overpowering the officer and shooting him four times after he stopped them for speeding on Interstate 15. The officer is recovering.

Authorities reported that Torres surrendered but Cardiel was armed and was wounded in the groin by other officers.

2 held in pipe bomb blast; set off fire

A 19-year-old Montclair man and a 17-year-old juvenile were arrested early Monday morning after a pipe bomb they allegedly exploded touched off a 3-acre grass fire at the extreme north end of Haven Avenue in Alta Loma.

Jefferey Allen Natividad of 10268 Vernon St. Montclair, was booked in the West End jail this morning for investigation of possession of explosive devices. The juvenile, arrested on suspicion of the same violation, was released to his parents pending disposition of juvenile authorities.

West End Sheriff's deputies said that the firemen from the Foothill Fire District responded to the location on a report of a grass fire spreading into the foothills. Firemen were able to contain the fire within 20 minutes.

A San Bernardino County Sheriff's helicopter flying over the fire area spotted the two suspects franticaly attempting to stop the fire. The helicopter crew landed and after questioning the suspects took them into custody after Sheriff's deputies and firemen discovered an unexploded pipe bomb in the vicinity of the origin of the fire.

A search of the suspects van parked nearby, revealed yet another unexploded pipe bomb and the makings for several other similar type explosive devices. The Ontario Fire Department Bomb Squad was notified and disarmed the two unexploded devices.

Fireworks blamed for roof fires

Ontario and Montclair firemen assisted the Upland Fire Department Monday night in extinguishing two roof fires and a grass fire, possibly caused by fireworks, within a half-hour of each other in Upland.

The first fire reported at 9:47 p.m. destroyed the roof of a home at 711 W. Azure St., owned by Wilson Homes, causing an estimated $15,000 damage. Two engine companies from the Upland Fire Department fought the blaze for nearly 30 minutes before it was brought under control. Firemen said the roof fire was possibly caused by fireworks displays.

The second fire was reported in the 1100 block of West 14th Street about 10 p.m. In that fire, fireworks apparently ignited the roof of a home owned by Arthur Bast. Damage to the roof was minor.

Ontario and Montclair fire units were called in for mutual aid when a brush fire also was set off by fireworks along 14th Street.

Two officers injured

Police cars crash on way to burglary

Two Ontario police officers, answering a burglary-in-progress call early this morning, were injured when their cars collided broadside near Fourth Street and Baker Avenue in Ontario, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Injured in the accident were officers James Leonard Anderson, 31, and Pietro Adolfo Mello, 29, both of Ontario.

Mello was admitted for treatment of possible internal injuries and Anderson was treated and released at San Antonio Community Hospital, Upland.

Highway Patrolmen said it appeared Officer Mello was making a U-turn on Fourth Street, after he over-shot Baker Avenue, when his car was struck broadside by Officer Anderson's vehicle, eastbound on Fourth.

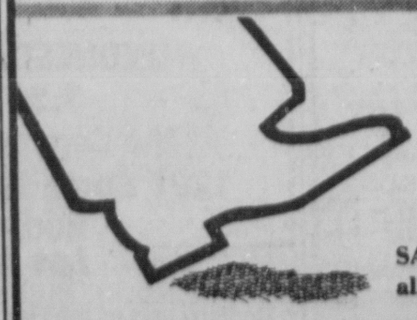

Patrolmen said both police cars received extensive damage and "citations" may be pending.

Meanwhile, it is assumed the burglar got away. Police this morning said sirens of emergency vehicles responding to the accident undoubtedly "scared him away."

EDDIE FISHER

Comeback attempt

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — Eddie Fisher, the "Golden Throat" of the 1950s, has launched what he hopes will be a successful comeback with a one-night stand at Grossinger's, a resort hotel in the Catskill Mountains.

Fisher, now in his late 40s, began his career at the same hotel when he was 17.

He said his appearance Sunday night "is like a rebirth for me, a new beginning."

During the almost 30 years of his spotty show business career, Fisher has had four wives, including Debbie Reynolds and later, Elizabeth Taylor, run up heavy debts and battled with amphetamines.

"This will be my last shot," he said.

During the last year Fisher has been working on an autobiography, which he said has "made me examine where I've been, the mistakes I've made."

He plans a series of appearance across the country leading to a "whole new act in Vegas" in October.

BILLY CARTER

At pole climbing

LEXINGTON, Tenn. (AP) — No beer was on hand but Billy Carter had a high time of it anyway, kissing women, signing autographs and presenting the top prize at Lexington's World Champion Pole-Climbing Contest.

With his teen-aged daughter, Kim, Carter appeared in good spirits, posing for family snapshots and playing in a softball game at Pratt Park Monday on the nation's 201st birthday.

Eddie Lambert, 18, of Jackson, Tenn., shinnied up a smooth 35-foot telephone pole in 22.5 seconds to defeat three other finalists.

CHARLIE SMITH

Ex-slave is 135

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — Charlie Smith, a former slave who once told an interviewer that "I'm a United States man," celebrated his 135th birthday as the nation marked its 201st.

Smith, the oldest person on Social Security rolls and the oldest known resident of the nation, was host at a party in his honor Monday at the Bartow Convalescent Center here.

"He had quite a celebration," a nurse said later. "He was on the news tonight at 6 o'clock. And his son, Chester, was here; the one who couldn't make it on Father's Day." Chester is 70.

Friendship Force in exchange tour

By The Associated Press

Nearly 400 travel-weary Georgians, delayed by heavy fog for almost three hours, arrived in Newcastle, England, today to begin a grass-roots program to acquaint Americans with people of other lands.

Back in Atlanta, meanwhile, about 380 Newcastle residents were getting acquainted with their American hosts after arriving Monday aboard the same jet that brought the Georgians here.

The two flights are the first contingents in the Friendship Force, a brainchild of President Carter. The program is financed by private donations and is not officially affiliated with any government.

The Georgians were taken by bus to the Newcastle Civic Center to meet their hosts, the "Geordies," as the people of Newcastle are called.

On Monday, Georgia Gov. George Busbee and about 800 persons greeted the Geordies at the airport at an Air Force band played "God Save the Queen" and "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Once through customs, the Georgies went to color-coded areas where they were met by their Atlanta-area hosts.

The first four days of both groups' 10-day visits will be spent with a family. Then, they will be free to travel or to stay with a second host before returning home.

Rummaging in patent office attic hilarious experience

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Americans have been inventing things since, well, since they invented America. In two centuries more than four million federal patents have been issued for individual or collective genius: for Morse's telegraph, for Bell's telephone, for Edison's incandescent lamp, for Fallek's grapefruit shield.

Fallek's grapefruit shield?

Joseph Fallek was responsible for that one, patent number 1,661,036, issued in February of 1927. The invention was designed to be attached to the fruit, as a kind of mud flap, where it was guaranteed to protect the eater from a squirt in the eye. Ah, yes, whatever would we do without it?

And what also would we do without the chewing gum locket? It was patented in 1889, number 395,515. The creator described it as an object for holding used gum "with safety, cleanliness and convenience." Thus secured, around the neck, the gum was handy for rechewing and also hidden "from the hands of persons to whom it doesn't belong."

Quite obviously, not all of America's four million patents have become household favorites. Inventors, like songwriters, give birth to fewer hits than misses. Lonely is the genius who labors in his workshop for the progress of man; lonelier still is he who succeeds merely in finding a solution which is worse than the problem.

Take Thomas Best, for example. Early this century he was struck by the fact that some people had sunken cheeks and therefore looked to him "emaciated." So he invented a "cheek expanding pad," two of which were to be used as falsies for the mouth. Unfortunately, they made wearers look like they really were sick, with mumps; they bombed.

Then there was the classic fire escape invention of 1879. It was in actuality a small parachute which could be buckled to a fire victim's head so that he "may safely jump out of the window of a burning building." There is no record of whether it was ever tried; if it was, no survivor has come to public attention.

Incidentally, fire escape inventions have been frequent. One man marketed a device in the 1920s which he called a cocoon; the wearer would get in it, blow it up like an innertube and allegedly hit the ground with a bounce. Also there is patent number 323,416: a pair of elastic suspenders that may also be used as a fire-escape rope.

Very often, according to the U.S. Patent Office, inventions have merely been improvements on other inventions. Such as Phillip Anthony's patented privy of 1886. Not content with just a hut over a hole, inventor Anthony created a privy on wheels — it rolled over the hole when in use, and then rolled away to facilitate clean up.

Of course, that privy could also be outfitted with an "improvement in privy seats" which was patented in 1869. To eliminate discomfort and to increase mobility, the seat inventor attached rollers to his sit-downer. The patent application said the rollers were a security and convenience and would "precipitate the user on to the floor."

Convenience. It's a word that appears again and again on U.S. patent descriptions. It was obviously what the inventor of the "male bicycle seat" had in mind when he hollowed out the padding for convenience of the genitals. It was also what J.C. Boyle considered when in 1896 he invented a fully automatic, self-tipping derby.

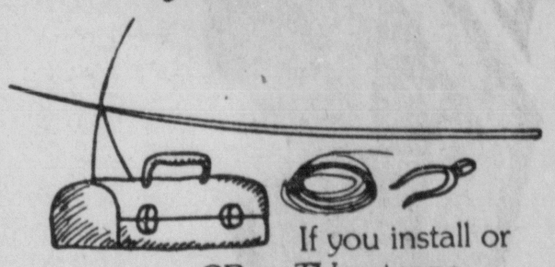

But necessity, not convenience, is more often the mother of invention. And so, in 1898, someone invented an electrical bedbug exterminator. In 1905, Emmie and Emily Thayer devised a "no hands" makeup mirror which was hooked to one's ears. And, in 1907, Ignatius Soares created an ominous contrivance to be worn for reshaping noses.

And yet for every invention that has filled a need, there have been many others that haven't. Balloons powered by eagles. Shoulder braces to keep students from slouching at their desks. In 1882 a man invented an alarm clock which, at the appointed hour, dropped a large frame of wooden blocks to beat on the unfortunate sleepyhead.

What's more, this kind of genius is not on the wane. Many of today's inventions also seem destined for utter obscurity. Recently, Emma Zmijewski of Brooklyn patented an instrument to prevent sleeping couples from breathing on one another; and a pair of imaginative Floridians have just created a genue "power-driven fingernail file."

But don't laugh. Who's to say about creativity? They scoffed at Fulton's steamboat, and Chester Carlton had a devil of a time finding early support for his automatic copier. Perhaps, as the years go by, for one reason or another, Joe Fallek's grapefruit shield may yet sweep the nation, along with the chewing gum locket.

FACTS ON MOBILE HOME RENT CONTROL

Q. DO MOBILE HOME TENANTS SUPPORT RENT CONTROL?

A. Some, but certainly not all. MANY TENANTS in Mobile Home parks throughout La Verne have voiced their disapproval of a governmental rent control ordinance. They believe best results can come from a direct tenant-owner/management agreement.

Q. WHO PAYS FOR A MOBILE HOME RENT CONTROL PROGRAM?

A. The private home owner in the form of increased city taxes to pay civil servants to administrate the program.

Q. WHO HAS REACHED AGREEMENT ON MOBILE HOME RENTS?

A. Mobile home park owners and tenants have agreed in essence to a two-year freeze on mobile home rent.

Q. DOES RENT CONTROL MEAN POSSIBLE LOWER PROPERTY VALUES FOR BOTH PRIVATE HOME OWNERS AND MOBILE HOME TENANTS?

A. YES. Mobile park owners will not be able to afford present increases in governmental required operating costs plus present and future planned improvements. Since they have no control on the cost of governmental required services, improvement of parks will suffer.

Q. WHO SUFFERS FROM RENT CONTROL?

A. EVERYONE. MOBILE HOME TENANTS SUFFER as well as mobile home park owners because of decreased services and A LOSS IN PROPERTY VALUES plus elimination of vital tenant management relationships; PRIVATE HOME OWNERS SUFFER BECAUSE OF INCREASED TAXES AND POSSIBLE DECREASE IN PROPERTY VALUES.

ALL IT TOOK TO GET REAL TASTE IN A LOW 'TAR' WAS TEN YEARS, A FEW GOOD MEN AND STUBBORNNESS BEYOND BELIEF.

In Decade we've accomplished something that many thought impossible: delivering real cigarette taste with only 5 mg. of tobacco 'tar.'

Of course, like all things worthwhile, it wasn't easy. The final ecstatic shout of, "Eureka, we did it!" was a long time coming —ten years, in fact. But when you succeed in doing the impossible, who counts the years?

The Decade "Total System"

How were we able to keep the taste in a low 'tar' when so many others have failed? Mainly by developing our unique "Total System" in which every part of a Decade cigarette is arranged in perfect balance with each other. The tobacco, the filter, and even the paper. Only by concentrating on these parts were we able to perfect the whole.

The Tobacco. "Flavor Packing"™ plus fifteen tobaccos boost taste.

Take the tobacco, for example. Its taste is boosted by a very unique method called "Flavor Packing" which allows us to concentrate a special patented tobacco flavorant in each Decade cigarette.

The Filter. Unique "Taste Channel" gives first puff impact.

Our filtration process is also unique. Simply, we've created a "Taste Channel" within the filter to give you that first puff impact you've come to expect from only the higher 'tar' cigarettes.

The Paper. High porosity paper controls burn rate.

Even our high porosity paper is specifically designed to give an efficient burn rate that delivers optimum taste with a minimum of 'tar.'

The result.
A completely new kind of low 'tar' cigarette.

So try a pack for yourself. Regular or Menthol. And who knows, after you smoke your first Decade, you may shout "Eureka" too.

Only 5 mg. 'tar.'

Regular and Menthol.

Summer fun is having imagination

Who says you need a chrome-plated bike, a real horse or elaborate playground equipment to have fun this summer?

It's certainly not the youngsters who have discovered the new games promoted by local recreation officials as the way to have fun, release pent-up emotions and compete in activities where everyone is a winner.

Upland's Magnolia Park was overflowing recently with happy boys and girls trying their talents at games which required only inexpensive equipment.

Among the more popular activities were pillow fights with duelers mounted on sidehorses borrowed from the gym, and straw battles which filled the air with shreds of yellow straw.

Other games included tumbling down a small hill inside a used inner tube and trying to maintain balance on top of a giant ball.

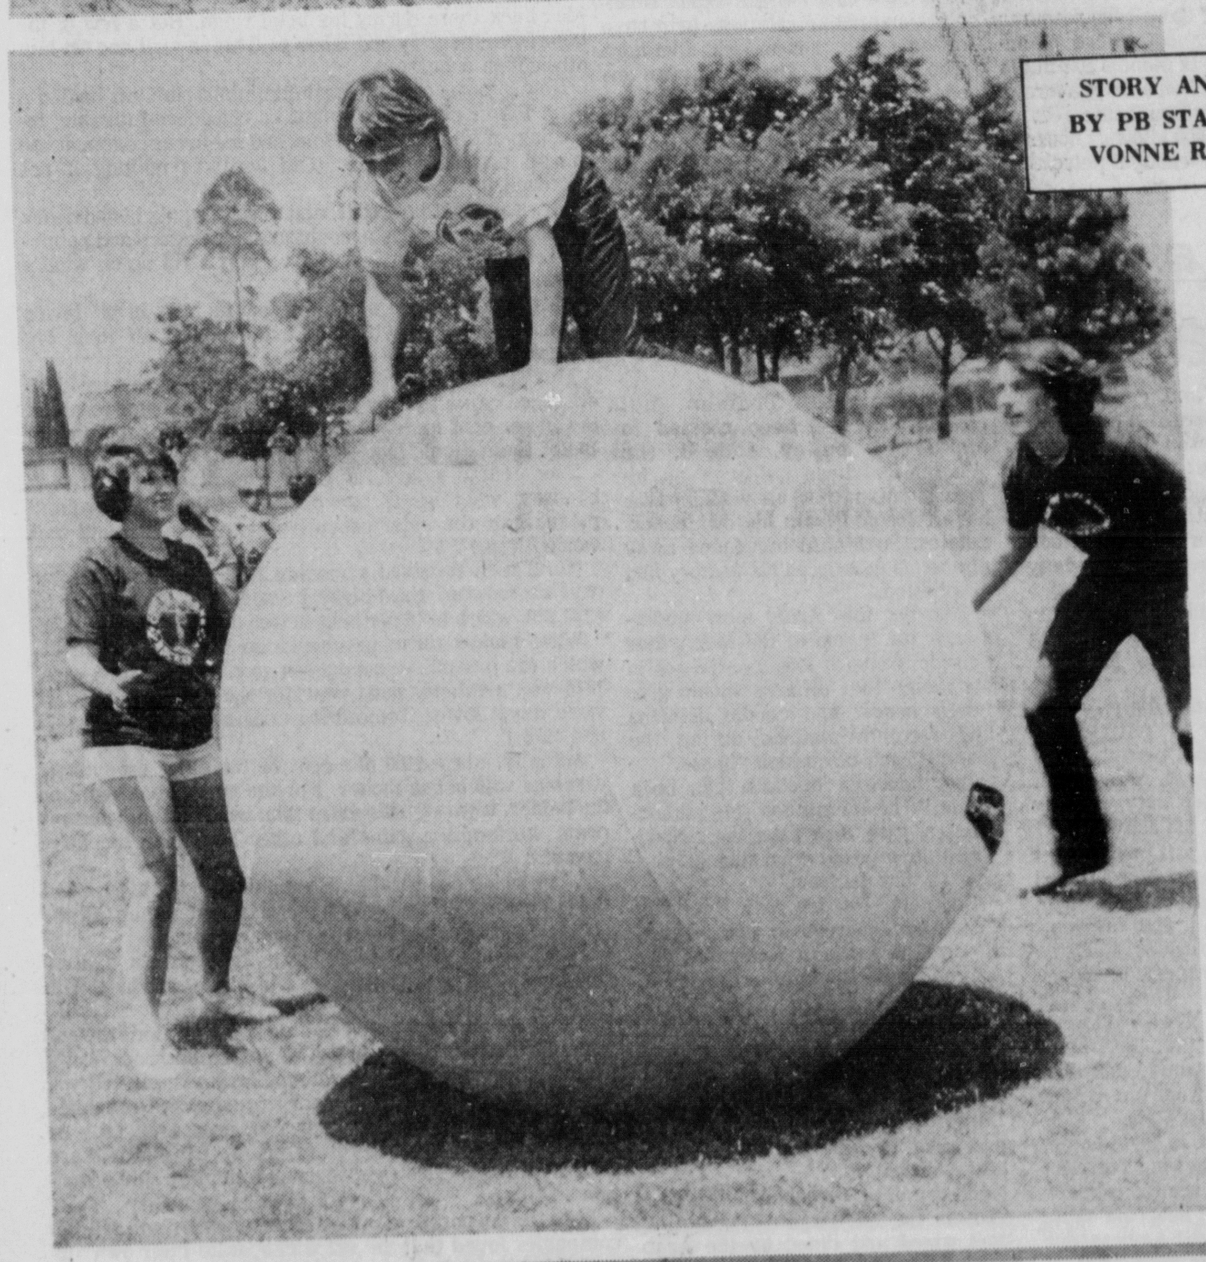

Another game was tug-of-war, with participants pulling other participants from tree stumps with ropes. Games also included tumbling and kite flying.

This kind of play reminded old-timers in the park of games they played as kids like kick-the-can and king-of-the-mountain.

"All it took was a can," smiled one.

Chino ponders prison problems

Should they be opposed . . . or should they be built?

Chino City Council members will grapple with such a question tonight when they take up the issue of proposed expansion of prison facilities at California Institution for Men (CIM).

Earlier this year, state prison authorities announced they were considering Chino as a prime site for the construction of one of two new 600-bed maximum security prison facilities.

State officials said the prisons were necessary because of an expected boom in the prison population due to mandatory sentencing laws and higher crime rates.

Local lawmakers, the Chino Planning Commission, the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce and numerous citizens have opposed the expansion in Chino.

The Chino City Council, however, has been mute on the issue — neither for or against the expansion.

Some council members have stated publicly their views on the issue — and if those views are an indication, there appears to be a split opinion.

Mayor Bob McLeod has consistently stated he is not opposed to the construction — which up until now has been delayed by state lawmakers until a prison feasibility study is completed.

Council member Eileen Carter has made it clear that she is opposed to constructing any new prison facilities in Chino. Council member Pete Garcia has likewise indicated he is opposed.

The council meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Chino City Hall.

Probe school fire at La Puente

Arson is suspected by fire officials investigating a $2,000 fire at Bassett High School in La Puente over the weekend.

Los Angeles County fire officials said the fire began in the student records in the administration building sometime between 5 p.m. Sunday and 10 a.m. Monday.

Damage was caused by water from the school's automatic sprinkler system which put out the fire before firemen arrived, according to investigators.

Valley hospital disaster drill

Personnel from 14 hospitals will participate in a refresher course in disaster communication presented by Inter-Community Hospital at Covina Wednesday.

Guest speakers will include Yvonne Wills, director of professional services, Hospital Council of Southern California, and Dr. Richard Scott, Medical Alert Center, USC Medical Center, and representatives from Motorola, Inc., Irvine.

Local participating hospitals will be Pomona Valley Community Hospital, Queen of the Valley, West Covina, City of Hope National Medical Center, and Glendora Community Hospital.

Study women's rights in school

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Continued concern over reorganization and restructuring in Pomona Unified School District will be shown again this evening as several women now holding administrative positions in the district appear before the board in executive session to discuss their concerns that women be given an equal chance to advance in the impending administrative shakeup.

The board has continued to show its concern over the growing movement toward the reorganization, even to the extent of seeing trustee Frances Livingston rise from a sickbed after a night in the hospital to attend last Thursday's special budget study session. Mrs. Livingston was greeted by a warm round of applause as she entered the board hearing room catching everyone off guard including Board President Don Donnelly who had just completed an explanation of Mrs. Livingston's illness to the audience.

Tonight the board is expected to hear from several women in the district who are concerned that women have not been given an equal chance for advancement in the district administration. At present, Sharon Russell, coordinator of elementary education, is the highest ranking woman in the school district's certificated ranks. The coordinator's position is expected to be done away with in the impending administrative reorganization.

Advocates for women's rights in the district also point to the fact that there have been no women named to administrative posts in the past year and that now, with the reorganization due, as well as a number of principalships opening, the time might be ripe to change that situation.

Women in the district have also pointed to the fact that a new affirmative action (equal job opportunity) policy and administrator have been approved by the board. In appearing before the board tonight, the women will probably be asking for a resolution on the part of the board stating its desire to see more women given administrative posts in the district.

Also scheduled for tonight's meeting will be the possible appointment of a new assistant superintendent for business services and a report from the business office on repairs and maintenance operations at Hamilton Elementary School.

The meeting will be in the board room of the Education Center, 800 S. Garey Ave., Pomona beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Hidden agendas

In view of the pretensions made by the state legislature in recent years for allowing the sun to shine on its every act as evidenced by opening up all committee sessions to the public, including conference committees and the minority caucus along with recorded roll calls of committee actions, the charges made by a top state tax authority are almost beyond belief.

But Kirk West, executive for the California Taxpayers Association, which watches legislative actions with the eyes of hawks, has fired a barrage claiming that "major tax issues are being pushed through" without the benefit of hearings in one house or the other and, in some cases, no hearings at all.

West has detailed seven such taxation provisions which he says appear headed for passage with only the approval of one policy committee or none at all.

That they are significant both in terms of dollars and potential effect upon the public can be seen from a quick rundown of the list.

One provision would permit the levying of user utility taxes by all general law cities and counties. It is estimated this will cost consumers $212 million annually. While charter cities and counties now have this power, proposals to extend it to the other local governments have been rejected by legislative policy committees session after session.

Another provision would permit all counties to levy business license fees, something now reserved only for chartered counties.

Other provisions increase the income tax to a maximum of 15 per cent, impose a special capital gains tax of 50 per cent on homes held for less than one year, broaden the ability of local government to tax to such things as parking, garbage collections, and amusements, up bank and corporation taxes about $30 million and propose a change which could remove boards of supervisors from the assessment appeals process.

Whether such changes are warranted or not is beside the point. Legislation is a serious business and any changes in the laws have far reaching effects on the public individually or collectively and often both.

It is for that reason that the constitution requires all proposals must undergo a 30-day waiting period after introduction before action commences. This is to give all interested parties ample opportunity to discover such proposals and prepare presentations pro or con.

The system then calls for full hearings before a committee in each house so that all have an opportunity to express their positions and so that the lawmakers themselves can fully understand the impact of the proposals.

To circumvent one house or the other by amending proposals into a bill already approved in another form by the first house defeats the intent of the constitution. No matter that the amendments have been heard and approved in committee by the second house in another bill, for the constitution has established the California Legislature to be composed of two houses with equal power. But, according to West, some of the amendments haven't even been approved by any committee.

Legislating in this manner amounts to resorting to hidden agendas where all members are not privy to what is transpiring, let alone the public. It violates the legislature's own rules which require bills to be returned to the policy committees in each house when major amendments have been adopted.

If the changes proposed are meritorious they will stand the test of full scrutiny. If not, obviously they shouldn't be adopted.

Think on these things

It's a great day when you re invited into a fight and you refuse to go. As much as someone needs you on their side — how can you gamble away your good prospective, or see things in a clear light if you get too involved? Someone has to stand on the outside and point the way out of the mess, and you sure can't do it if you're right in the middle of everything.

Sympathy is a good thing, but sometimes sympathy is not what someone needs. They need something to hang onto, someone with their feet on the ground and a steady word to speak. They need someone to speak the truth — to say, "Look you are a pain and when you change your attitude, your life will change, too." Or simply a word of encouragement, the steadfast thought to stand still — this too, will pass. But we must be free to see clearly, say honestly.

Thoughts

Let the thief no longer steal, but rather let him labor, doing honest work with his hands, so that he may be able to give to those in need. — Ephesians 4:28.

I believe in the dignity of labor, whether with head or hand, that the world owes every man an opportunity to make a living. — John D. Rockefeller Jr., American philanthropist.

Expo 81 unfair to taxpayers

Dear Editor:

United Democrats of Pomona Valley have gone on record in opposition to the proposed Expo 81 World's Fair at Ontario. Thus we join a number of groups and local governments, including the State League of Women Voters, virtually every known environmental organization, and the city governments of Loma Linda, Chino and Claremont. Moreover, a relatively new coalition of individuals and organizations — Citizens against Expo 81 — has been formed and some members of our club are active in this group.

We have held a well attended public forum on this issue and we have done a great deal of research on the proposed fair. Let us outline some of the negative aspects of the scheme:

1. With an ostensible water shortage and the danger of its continuing, perhaps even leading to water rationing, we simply cannot accommodate approximately 200,000 visiting people each day for six months, consuming 4.6 million gallons of water daily.

2. With the west end of San Bernardino County facing a serious overloading of its sewage treatment plants, so that there may well be a cutback or halt in development in the area, we cannot accommodate 200,000 people each day for six months generating 2.8 million gallons of sewage and 176 tons of refuse.

3. In an era of dangerous resource depletion, we cannot afford to accommodate for six months 30 million people who would on a daily average consume one million cubic feet of natural gas, 600,000 kilowatt hours of electricity, and enough petroleum products to drive 60,000 cars every day for six months.

4. In an era of rising government costs, it is simply unfair to ask local taxpayers to pay for all the increased public services that Expo's own consultants say would be necessary in order to have the fair.

It is obvious why an increasing number in this area are questioning the advisability of such a world's fair. A very few people may profit, perhaps some people living far away in Century City (where the Expo corporation has its headquarters) or in New York City (where Expo's financiers and public relations firm have offices). But it is we who live here who will suffer. That is why we are opposed to Expo 81.

Army has learned lesson

WASHINGTON — Two generals have been blistered for offering President Carter their unsolicited advice on military strategy. The president was "stomping mad," according to one report, over their use of the newspapers to present their dissenting views.

Now the Army, properly chastened, has cautioned the brass to keep their mouths shut. General Bernard Rogers, the Army chief, has made this suggestion in an emphatic memo to his fellow generals. He entitled the memo: "Speaking Up Speaking Out."

Bluntly, he warned that the "unfounded publicity about muzzling the military" could turn into "a self-fulfilling prophecy" if the generals didn't learn to hold their tongues.

"Intellectual honesty demands," he conceded, "that frank views be privately expressed." But he put the emphasis on the word "privately." The "last thing that should be done," he warned, "is to carry any arguments and disagreements to the public media."

This has aroused the ghost of the departed General Douglas MacArthur. Throughout the Korean War, he had been an incendiary catalyst among the powder kegs. First, he called for expanding the war into Manchuria. Then he wanted to use Chiang Kai-shek's armies to open a second front on the Chinese mainland.

He insisted that the Korean War was "the key to the world situation," scornfully repudiating the doctrine of limited war and compromise peace. He shouted from the housetops the catch phrase that became his anthem: "In war there is no substitute for victory."

Finally, on April 11, 1951, President Harry Truman boiled over and fired MacArthur, setting off a daily heightening typhoon of national emotion. It found visible expression in the fervent crowds that surged forth in record numbers to hail the returned martyr.

Many Americans angrily demanded whether a politician-president should be permitted to silence a hero-general. Was it not MacArthur's bounden duty, the cry went up, to express his convictions?

These questions, if somewhat more subdued, have been raised again across the nation. Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, lean and crewcut, spoke out against President Carter's plan to withdraw American troops from South Korea. Three weeks later, Lt. Gen. Donn Starry suggested pointedly that the United States will likely become embroiled in a future war between the Soviet Union and Communist China.

Both generals were brought home, post haste, for a chewing out. But many sympathizers wanted to know why a general didn't have the same right as United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young to air his honest, if controversial, beliefs.

In the case of MacArthur, the institutional defenses of the republic eventually contained the public uproar. The majority came to recognize that Truman, not MacArthur, had been elected to make U.S. policy. Indeed, the general had been guilty of an insubordination that he would never have tolerated from his own subordinates. So MacArthur faded away almost as quietly as his oratory had prophesied.

Clearly, the Army now understands the lesson of the MacArthur episode. General Rogers stressed in his memo that officers should give "their honest and candid opinions and recommendations during the planning and discussion phases."

But "once a decision has been made," he reminded his subordinates, "we then have the responsibility to give our wholehearted support to that decision."

Footnote: For his part, President Carter has assured Sen. Orrin Hatch, R.-Utah, in a private letter that "we will not stifle dissent."

PERCY'S PROBLEM — The boyishly handsome Sen. Charles Percy, R.-Ill., was once one of Israel's staunchest supporters. But somewhere on the road to Damascus, he saw a new light and, overnight, became one of the Arabs' biggest boosters.

His dramatic turnabout followed a visit to the Middle East, where he was wined and dined by the Arab potentates. The Senator was royally treated, for example, by Egypt's President Anwar Sadat. Thereafter, Percy emerged as a hero in the Arab world for changing his pro-Israeli stand.

Bright prospects for grads

This season's commencement speakers have viewed with alarm, focused fearfully on unanswered questions and prodded our spring crop of young folks to "correct the mess" which they inherit.

I challenge those who are so all-fired, hang-dog apologetic about the "mess."

Nor do I think this particular generation has been discriminated against — neither by fate nor by their fathers.

Erosion of our currency is threatening our solvency, but our dollar supply always has been either too fat or too lean.

There is much too much wanton crime abroad in our land, but most of its increase is juvenile — not adult.

If some parents have failed to set a proper example for their children, so have some parents — ever since Eve.

A newsman is more than ordinarily aware of society's shortcomings but let's examine the other side of the ledger.

This generation is seeing come to pass something mankind has sought for 6,000 years: War is going out of style!

For the first time in recorded history there is one nation in the world where nobody is going to bed really hungry — and we live there!

Our generation has dug itself out from under yet another recession and has gone on to rebuild the most powerful economy the world has ever known; today's young folks are heirs to that legacy.

Our much maligned generation also has managed such medical progress that every young man and woman is now reasonably assured of additional pain-free years of life itself!

We did that!

"You go forth," the commencement speaker says, "into a cruel world which is not of your own making . . ."

No, by George, it is not of your making. It is of our making and we are not ashamed of it. We are proud of it!

So your atmosphere and water are polluted and our resources are depleted. Well, let me say this about that:

At every official measuring station, air and water pollution measures less than it did five years ago. We are swimming in San Francisco Bay again. We are fishing the Great Lakes again. The Cuyahoga River in Ohio does not catch fire any more.

Similarly, in every smoke-shrouded city in the United States the air is now purer than it's been in 30 years!

New energy resources on the way are limitless, infinite!

Besides, this isn't supposed to be Paradise. Paradise is being prepared somewhere else; we have to prove here whether we deserve to be there. If there were perpetual sunshine there would be no victory.

It isn't supposed to be all fun or easy. We no longer tame the wilderness with an axe. But we still joust with dragons; we still match wits with unfriendly natives, and we still work and fight and pay — every bit as much today and with the same objective in view: you.

So you get no apology, June graduate. You get yourself a country mostly civilized, an economy still mostly free, a church door that is still open and unwatched, and you get a chance to preserve and protect and defend these things as we did. I hope you can do better than we did. But you could do worse!

Just in jest

"Let me take your cart back to the store!" shouted an eager youngster on the food market parking lot. "I get 10 cents for every cart I take back into the store and I'm trying to earn enough money to buy my dad a Father's Day gift."

"Well O.K.," said the lady who was wheeling her grocery purchases out to her car. "But don't you know that Father's Day is over?"

"Oh yes, I know," the lad replied as he took charge of the cart and helped unload its contents. "My dad is just going to have to get a late present."

The perks are in trouble

Pity the poor fellows in the Executive Suite, where the money's good and getting better all the time. What really counts is the perks — and they're in peril.

Now, that's serious.

It's all very well for Jimmy Carter to zap "Hail to the Chief" and sell off the presidential yacht if he wants to. But when you start fooling around with the boss's key to the washroom on the corporate jet, you're treading on macho territory.

After all, anybody can pull down six figures a year. Some even make seven. So what's to separate the biggie from the rest of the pack if not his fancy fringes?

Things like a chauffered limousine always at his beck and call . . . a private airplane to whisk him off to directors' meetings and fishing trips . . . annual physical exams . . . even a bodyguard to protect him from kidnappers. Top-level stuff like that.

All of which your superexecutive could easily afford to pay for himself. But that's not what makes it special. It's getting it for free that gives him the extra clout with his country-club cronies.

And now here's this young whippersnapper, this Jerome Kurtz who, just because he's got this new job of head honcho at Internal Revenue, is talking about taxing all those goodies.

Oh, sure, good ole Jerry made a halfhearted pass at the idea back there during his brief reign. But a few of the boys from industry and labor paid him a visit and set him straight in a hurry.

Now it turns out the Ford administration left behind a little list of perks that might be considered taxable, including, of all things, hot dogs and ice cream eaten at the annual company picnic. (Old Jer was nothing if not thorough.)

Mr. Kurtz got hold of it, and now he wants his advisory group of tax lawyers, accountants, professors and public-interest representatives to give him a ruling on what's allowable and what isn't.

This could only be bad news for the boys in the board room. Almost enough to take the bloom off their big salary boosts for 1976.

Maybe it's only a coincidence, but word of this new IRS diligence came exactly 24 hours after news stories about the 20-per-cent increase in last year's pay for top men in 100 of the nation's biggest industries.

The median salary for chief executive officers, plus bonuses, went up 17 per cent to $420,000. ("Median" means half the chief executives earned more and half earned less.)

No. 2 men received a median $293,700, almost 20 per cent more. And third-highest executives moved up to $237,200, which is 16 per cent better than they did in 1975.

What makes these paychecks so fat is the bonuses, which are passed around only in good years. Profit-wise, 1976 was a mighty good year for the top 100. (Bonuses were much lower, sometimes even nonexistent, in 1974 and 1975.)

Actually, almost 60 per cent of the chief executives' earnings was bonus money. For the next two officers on the ladder, it was a little more than half. And that doesn't count stock-option gains and other long-term incentive payouts.

All of which are taxable. Especially for the big guns at the golden end of the scale who, when you add up all the goodies, earn more than $1 million a year.

That's what's called being in the top brackets, a situation most of us could manage to live with and to heck with the perks.

But many an occupant of the big corner office (the one with the color TV, the bar, the deluxe bathroom-cum-sauna and the hot-and-cold running lackeys) will tell you it's those perks that make the rat race worth running.

He will go even further and argue that what may be frivolous fringes (and therefore taxable) to the IRS are good business tactics (and therefore an allowable deduction).

Take the corporate plane. A recent comparison of 1,000 companies found that the 492 who operate their own aircraft beat the sales pants off the 508 who don't.

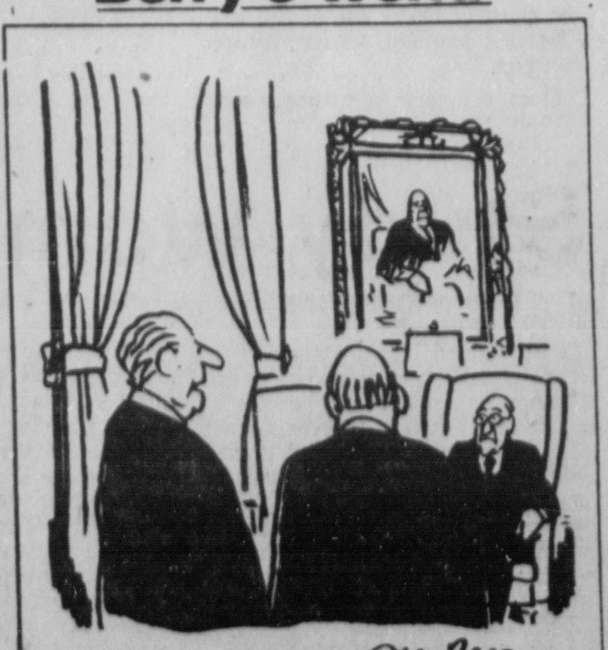

The high fliers grabbed 87 per cent of the total net business done by all 1,000, owned 83 per cent of the total assets and employed 72 per cent of the total workers.

What more can they do to convince Mr. Kurtz that the corporate jet makes them more productive, more profitable and more efficient?

Keep log books, Mr. Kurtz replies. And expense records and executive diaries to prove their company limousines, jets, yachts and country-club memberships are business-only benefits that are never, ever, cross your corporate heart, used for personal pleasure.

Picky, picky. Leave it to a bureaucrat to take all the fun out of playing Daddy Warbucks.

Ann Landers

Arguments against smoking

Dear Ann Landers: I have read so much about the dangers of cigarette smoking that I'm beginning to have trouble separating the facts from fiction. So many letters have appeared in your column from people who are annoyed by cigarette smoke. I wonder if perhaps that is the reason so many people are against it.

Please print the proven truth. I mean facts — not just emotional reactions from irritated cranks. Thank you. — Uncertain in N.Y.

Dear Uncertain: If it's facts you want, here are the latest from the Royal College of Physicians as reported by the Associated Press. The story was filed from London on June 1, 1977.

The most unsettling statement to emerge from the study was this: "Each cigarette cuts 5½ minutes from a smoker's life-span."

This study, entitled "Smoking or Health," was the third in-depth investigation by the Royal College during the past 15 years. It was prepared in cooperation with all of Britain's medical colleges.

The Royal College, a leading medical institution that dates back to 1518, called for tough, new anti-smoking measures, including a ban on tobacco advertising to end what was described as the "lethal epidemic" caused by tobacco.

The Royal College called for withdrawal of all but lower-tar cigarettes, higher prices for cigarettes and a much stronger health warning than now appears on cigarette packs.

The study says roughly one in three smokers dies because of smoking, that a smoker who quits gains immediate benefit. Within 10 to 15 years after he quits smoking, the extra risk of dying early disappears.

It was estimated that in Britain 50 million working days a year are lost through illness caused by smoking.

If the Royal College's proposals were adopted, millions of Britons would have to change their smoking habits. Withdrawl of all but lower-tar cigarettes, for example, would force an estimated 80 per cent of smokers to switch brands if they didn't quit.

The Royal College called current government action against smoking "paltry and hesitating."

Dear Ann: I am writing because of the recent rash of letters from smokers who insist on their right to smoke if they want to. They claim it's a "free country" and the non-smokers are infringing on their "rights."

I am a two-pack-a-day smoker who agrees with the non-smokers who say the air belongs to everyone and nobody has the right to pollute it. If I am the only smoker in the group, I don't smoke. If I am in a home where there are no ashtrays out, I don't ask for one. The message is clear and I respect it.

I just want you to know that not all smokers are rude and inconsiderate. I hate myself for smoking and wish I could quit. — Hooked In Hinsdale

Dear Hooked: The key to your problem is in those three words, "I hate myself." I'm convinced that anyone who continues to smoke or eat or drink excessively — knowing full well his behavior may be life-threatening — does indeed "hate himself" and needs professional help.

Phone your local chapter of the American Cancer Society for the list of self-help groups. You CAN stop smoking if you want to. Millions have already done so.

Train puppy at early age

DEAR DR. MILLER: My husband's starting right out with Spunky as though he expected him to become the smartest dog in the world. I'll admit he's smart, but after all, he's just a baby. Isn't it hard on a puppy to start training them so young? — N.P.

DEAR N.P.: No, not if the training program is matched to the puppies capabilities. At a very few weeks of age, a puppy is capable of (and indeed is) learning at a rapid rate. Programming some of the input is perfectly acceptable, if done properly. Once confidence and rapport is established, short, gentle training sessions can help get the puppy off to the right start and make later training considerably easier.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We did it. We killed her. And we're terribly, terribly sorry. But, you see, it really wasn't our fault. We don't have any pets of our own. We didn't even think of the danger when we used that spray in our garden. Later, we'd seen the fluffy, gray and white cat out there, but hadn't connected the two. It was only when a neighbor inquired as to whether we used insecticides, and said their gray and white cat had been poisoned that we realized. To atone, a little, maybe we can dissuade some suburbanites from using poison in their garden. It's a terrible thing to poison someone's pet. — D.F.

DEAR D.F.: Your plea may dissuade some caring people (non-pet owners) from using poisonous pesticides. Yet, pet-owners themselves are often the ones who inadvertently poison their own pets with these products. Here I go again, but cats kept indoors cannot wander in neighbor's gardens, or their own, and can be protected from these potentially deadly poisons (many of which have no effective antidote).

DEAR DR. MILLER: When a frog gets red leg, is he discolored for life? I don't care what Hoppy's legs are because I would never let anybody eat him anyway. — K.B.

DEAR K.B.: Frogs with "red leg" often don't have a long life. In a frog affected with this bacterial disease, the blood vessels in the legs become very prominent and thus, the legs increasingly reddish-colored. I'd hope Hoppy hasn't acquired this disease, but if he ever did, early treatment with antibiotics could save him and restore normal color to his legs.

When a giraffe is vulnerable

That moment when a giraffe is most vulnerable to attack is when it spreadeagles its front legs wide so it can drop its head low enough to drink from a waterhole. It couldn't be more immobilized if a cop were to kick its feet apart and tell it to lean against its hands on a car hood.

Claim is that no twin has ever been generally acclaimed as a genius. Famous, yes. Talented, certainly. But genius, no. What's odd about this is that one out of every 40 or 50 people ever born has been a twin. With that ratio, you'd think a genius twin would show up, eventually.

MORE WHISKEY

Q. "Quick, Louie, what famous American politician always carried a cane with a tube inside it full of whiskey?"

A. None other than New York's Al Smith, the man Franklin D. Roosevelt called "the Happy Warrior of the political battlefield." Smith, you may recall, was the old boy who said being in politics was like floating down a sewer in a glass-bottom boat. It was Smith who first delivered that introductory line since used by just about every politician in the country: "Let's look at the record."

Q. "It can't be called 'Swiss cheese' unless it was really made in Switzerland, right?"

A. Not right. So many imitators copied the original Swiss cheese that the Swiss now identify their own thing as Switzerland cheese, not Swiss cheese.

Q. "How much more distance can a good golfer get when driving the smaller British golfball?"

A. About 50 yards, says Ben Hogan. About 10 yards, say the British.

REAR-END COLLISIONS

Studies now prove what you probably already know, if you've driven a car any length of time. Namely, that the rear-end collision is not always the entire fault of the driver in the rear, even though the law reads it that way. Many is the driver whose record lists repeated involvement in rear-end collisions, but always as the driver in front whose car was struck from behind. A tendency to hesitate first, then slam on the brakes, that's the common characteristic of the rear-end collision "victim."

No wonder the experts argue over just what sort of beast is the panda. It's got a face like a raccoon, feet like a cat, and a body like a bear.

Everybody is a conspirator

To my husband, being late for work isn't just a minor inconvenience, it's a conspiracy.

He doesn't know names, but he knows that there's a group of us out there who have dedicated our lives and talents to making him late. Frankly, I'd rather sleep next to a space missile that had to be aborted three seconds before launch. "Well, I hope you're all happy," he said, fighting off the covers. "You've done it again. I'm going to be late for work."

"No wonder," I said, "The alarm is set for 8:30."

"Wasn't that the plan?" he asked bitterly. "Hide his glasses and he won't know what he's doing with the alarm."

"I'll lay out your socks and . . ."

"Oh no you don't. The last time I was late you laid out the socks with the lint pattern, the underwear with the broken elastic and the shirt that you never notice needs a button until you start to put on your tie."

"Okay," I said, "do it yourself."

Minutes later. "What have you done to my feet? I can't get them into the socks! These socks have been laminated together. Just throw them into my briefcase and I'll put them on in the car. What do you mean what did I do to my face? Good Lord, woman, have you never seen a man wrapped in toilet tissue before? I cut myself! What did you expect when you took out the old razor blade you scraped paint off the garage windows with and replace it with a new one?"

"Do you want any breakfast?"

"No. Thanks to the kids, I've already guzzled a glass of water from a tumbler the kids had poured creme rinse into. Tell me, what else do you all have in store to make my day more miserable than it began? Let me guess. My car won't start. At the end of the drive I'll get behind a camper caravan. My street at the office will be blocked off for a parade and I'll have to park and take a bus. The air conditioning will go off and I'll have to remove my coat to reveal my bowling shirt. I'll have onion rings for lunch and a dental appointment at 2:30. I'll have to write a check for a pack of gum and my first appointment of the day will be to fire Miss Mahoney for her tardiness."

"Does that mean you can't drop the children off at school on your way to the office?"

"I don't believe you can be so cruel," he said and stomped toward the car. He limped in for a paper towel within seconds, having stepped in the dog's contribution to ecological warfare, and leaned over to the dog and shouted, "You're in on it too, aren't you?"

Dr. Lamb

Fair skins and the sun

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if you could recommend anything for dry skin. My skin is light and I get brown spots and they peel off. My doctor advised me to wear a hat most always. When out in the sunlight all makeup burns my face. I have tried several soaps and they don't work either. I also have dry places on my body and would appreciate some advice.

DEAR READER — Fair-skinned people do have more trouble with the sun than others. You probably need to use a good sunscreen all year around. Not all so-called sun lotions really protect you from the sun. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots, and Cancer, which contains a discussion of sun screens, both by a physical barrier which are the can't see. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for this issue to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Those brown spots do come out from exposure to the sun. The only way to prevent them is by preventing sun damage. Wearing a hat and any other protective garment is a good idea.

You should also use a skin moisturizer. Any substance that is oily and will form a film over the skin will do the job. The oily substance will prevent the evaporation of moisture from the skin and prevent drying. Ordinary cooking oil, such as corn oil, will work as well as the most expensive creams for this purpose.

People who are prone to dry skin should avoid bathing too often. Almost any soap and certainly water will wash away natural skin surface oils that are there to keep your skin moisturized.

The way to stay clean and avoid excessive skin drying is to use soap only on the problem areas where smells originate, such as under the arms, and just shower the rest of the body in plain water. This becomes more important as you get older since we tend to lose our natural skin oils over large parts of the body.

DEAR DR. LAMB — On so many of the soap operas, every time a woman becomes pregnant she experiences dizzy spells and usually faints once or twice. Is it common for a woman to faint in early pregnancy? What causes her to faint? Also what would happen if one fainted, say at home, when she was alone?

DEAR READER — I'm afraid that is more soap opera than medical fact. Most pregnant women do not faint in early pregnancy. In fact many women feel better in the early months of pregnancy than they did before. Some have morning nausea and related problems but many do not.

Later in pregnancy the more developed baby may compress the large veins that return the blood from the lower part of the body to the heart and that can lead to fainting but even that is not common.

If a woman is anemic with her pregnancy it can increase her tendency to faint. Should a pregnant woman faint at home alone it is likely that nothing would happen. Most healthy people who faint recover rather quickly when they are lying down and the normal circulatory mechanisms are resumed.

Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column.

Opening lead — A♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Pierre Jais of France has long been recognized as one of the world's greatest players. The test of greatness includes a thorough knowledge of the fundamentals of the game, correct principles of bidding and play plus a real extra — the ability to take unusual action successfully.

His three heart opening is an example. He might well have opened one heart, but look what that bid did to his opponents. North passed and South elected to double with his two-suit hand. North jumped to five clubs and the cinch spade game had gone to that bourne of space and time from which no traveler returns.

On the other hand, it took some real play by Jais to beat the five-diamond contract. He started by leading his ace of clubs. Then he boldly underled his ace of hearts. East produced the king and led back a club.

There was no way to keep Jais' jack of trumps from collecting the setting trick.

Ask the Jacobys

An Arkansas reader wants to know what we respond to partner's one-notrump opening bid with:

♠ 4 2 ♥ 5 3 ♦ A K ♣ 9 7 6

We simply raise to three notrump. Our good six-card suit warrants a game contract and we will try for the nine trick game. We will be wrong sometimes, but right in the long run.

Vance calls exodus 'one of world's most urgent humanitarian concerns'

Vietnamese continue to flee their homeland

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Aided by corrupt officials and the Hanoi government's inability to patrol all of a long coastline, Vietnamese are still fleeing their Communist-ruled homeland in increasing numbers.

U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance called the continuing Indochina exodus one of "the world's urgent humanitarian concerns" and has urged that countries not turn their backs on "these unfortunate people."

More than 300 Vietnamese arrived at Thai ports in June and scores of others sailed to other — not always friendly — countries in the region. Some Vietnamese were picked up by passing freighters. Still others watched as ocean going vessels passed them by on the high seas.

Vietnam watchers and refugee officials agree Communist Vietnam remains firmly opposed to emigration, both of the legal and illegal varieties. Most specialists discount speculation that officials not involved in corruption turn a blind eye to the exodus as the easiest way to solve a sticky social problem.

A spokesman for the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees — UNHCR — said the number of so-called boat case arrivals in Thailand was down somewhat from May. But many observers see that drop as an indication more boat people are attempting longer voyages. One recently made it all the way to Australia, a trip of 1,500 miles or longer, depending on the route sailed.

Thailand remains the easiest voyage — just four or five days — but new arrivals are sometimes greeted with suspicion and interned in camps until the UNHCR or other agencies can place them in other countries.

The UNHCR says boat case arrivals in Thailand total nearly 1,850 so far this year — two years after the Communists took over Indochina. No tally is kept worldwide.

In Vietnam, corruption at low levels and a 1,266-mile coastline make escape by sea possible — but not easy — for Vietnamese able to pay the price.

"Corruption is rampant. There is a thriving gold and dollar blackmarket," said one diplomat who watches Indochina.

A former Saigon army major who was picked up by an Israeli cargo ship with 65 other escapees and is now in Israel agreed. "I paid 70 piasters (about $23) for this travel pass," said Le Dinh Quy of the important document that allowed him to travel from Saigon to Phan Thiet, where he and others boarded their boat.

Not all the boats make it to Thailand or other safe ports. Some never leave. Vietnamese security forces arrest some would-be escapees before they board. Naval patrols stop others, and observers believe many of the ill-equipped and often dilapidated boats sink without a trace.

The Communist government considers the escapees criminals and reportedly has a special jail at the seaport town of Vung Tau to accommodate those who try to leave — and fail.

However, officials at all levels have problems blocking escapes.

"They are against the sea escapes but they haven't got the resources to stop them," said one observer. "How are you going to monitor the entire coastline?"

North Vietnamese security cadres are often poorly informed of conditions in southern Vietnam and one favorite escape area, the Mekong Delta, is full of small hidden inlets and mangrove swamps.

"For a while it was reported the authorities were taking motors off many boats. There are also reports of fishing limits to keep the boats relatively close to shore," said a diplomatic source. "But Vietnam has a protein shortage. They can't restrict deep water fishing too much."

Few Asian countries welcome the Vietnamese, though most feel obliged to give boatloads of refugees at least temporary shelter. Thailand has an official — though not enforced — policy of turning arriving boats around and sending them on their way. Malaysia on several occasions has done just that, and Singapore imposes a stiff bond requirement on any skipper who enters port with refugees picked up at sea.

Still, the refugees continue to make the voyage in increasing numbers. Camps in Thailand alone now have 80,000 Indochinese refugees, although most are Laotians and Cambodians who crossed their common land or river borders with Thailand.

Russ giving private enterprise a boost

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government is trying to breathe new life into a last bit of private enterprise — the tiny plots of land on which individual farmers are still permitted to raise their own cash crops.

The existence of the private plots flies in the face of Soviet ideology and contrasts with the vast mass of Soviet farmland owned by the government and sociologist-type farmers' cooperatives.

Private plots occupy only 1.5 per cent of all Soviet farmland but in 1975 they produced 31 per cent of the nation's meat and milk, 35 per cent of its vegetables, 40 per cent of all eggs and 60 per cent of potatoes.

Putting practically ahead of ideology, the government is now doing everything it can to encourage private plot production as it struggles to feed its growing population.

The campaign is being led by President Leonid I. Brezhnev himself, who declared in a major speech earlier this year that private plots are a "reserve of no small importance" in food supplies. He told state officials and farm organizations to help farmers with their private plots and keep the level of production up.

The help comes none too soon for the owners of private plots, whose percentage contribution to national farm production has been steadily declining. The plots provided 32 per cent of the nation's total food in the early 1960s but are now believed to provide less than 25 per cent.

Plot owners complain that they are suffering primarily from a lack of feed for their animals. Plots are limited to no more than 1.2 acres but owners may often keep a cow and calves, a couple of hogs or up to 10 sheep or goats.

"From the carefully allocated supply of feed (for the state or collective farm where private plot owners spend most of their time working) it is difficult to appropriate something for the private plots," a Soviet newspaper complained recently.

"The feed supply is planned often only for the needs of the collective farm; it's an old, prejudiced idea that the 'privateer' will somehow squeak through."

Private plot owners have been driven to city bakeries, where they buy bread at low prices and take it home as feed for their cattle. The practice is illegal and some farmers have drawn jail terms for trying it on too large a scale.

Private plot production has also declined because of rural reconstruction programs that make it difficult for people to live near their plots and because of rising rural income, according to Western specialists.

Many farmers keep their plots not for the advantage of selling their produce on the open market but to feed themselves. As rural incomes rise — the average farmer makes the equivalent of about $2,000 a year now compared to $875 in 1960 — farmers tend to buy their food in ordinary stores instead of producing it themselves.

Private plot food that does go to market is either sold to the state or directly to the public. Every Soviet city has a collective farm market where private-plot farmers usually offer food that is more plentiful and attractive than the offerings in state stores.

Prices are often much higher for the privately produced food, although some collective farm markets have price ceilings that keep farmers from gouging customers too much.

In Moscow, however, chickens have sold at the collective farm market for $20 apiece.

The campaign to aid private plots includes particular encouragement for poultry, pig and rabbit breeding, new supplies of weed-killing and antipest chemicals for the plots, increased availability of feed and mineral fertilizer and more pumps and hoses for plot irrigation.

Private plot owners also are getting help in grinding grain into meal and in canning fruit and vegetables.

"Individual farming (private plots) will be exculsively for home consumption and will disappear in the future," the official Tass news agency predicted in 1967. But Soviet leaders now have apparently decided not to argue with success and are making a major commitment to keeping the private plots in the future.

Long search ends

Sister, brother reunited after 61-year separation

By ALAN BROWN

LANCASTER, Calif. (NEA) — "I was really stunned," said Anna Mathis. "I was really too numb to believe it."

"After searching for so long, I really didn't believe it," added Norman Hickman.

"I had been leery of the situation — I really wasn't that convinced until I got here," he continued. "Then I knew they were my family!"

REASON TO SMILE — Anna and Norman Hill, reunited after a 61-year separation, chat during recent reunion at the home of Anna's daughter and son-in-law at Lancaster.

After 61 years, Anna Hill Mathis and Norman (Hill) Hickman — sister and brother — were reunited after a lifetime of separation. The reunion took place recently at the home of Mrs. Mathis' daughter and son-in-law here.

The reunion brought to an end more than three decades of searching by Hickman for members of his real family, a family that was separated by adoption proceedings back in 1915.

Tragedy had struck the family of Henry A. Hill back in 1915, when Hill's wife, Margaret, died, leaving him with six children to raise.

Living on a farm outside Seneca, Mo., Hill soon found that his eldest daughter, Anna, then 16, simply couldn't take care of five younger brothers: Walt, then 14; Bert, 7; Kenneth, 4; Norman, 2; and Ralph, only six weeks.

"It was too much for me to raise all five boys," remembered Anna. "We had to move to town, because my father couldn't make a living on the farm."

Nevertheless, she related, they managed to keep the family together for almost two years, until her father had to go to Oklahoma to find work in the oil fields. It was then that he decided to take the three youngest boys — Kenneth, then 6; Norman, then 4; and Ralph, 2; to an orphanage operated by the Nazarene Church in Ft. Scott, Kan.

Anna and the two oldest boys were now on their own, living with other relatives near Seneca, working "anywhere I could find work" she recalled.

On his fourth birthday, Oct. 22, 1917, Norman Hill met his "new" parents: James and Mosie Ellen Hickman, of Alva, Okla. The Hickmans had come to Missouri to attend a family reunion, heard about the three children, and after seeing them at the orphanage in Ft. Scott, decided to adopt Norman.

"I didn't have a whole lot of recollection of my real family at that age," Norman recently recalled. "I didn't remember who my family was, but I knew I had a sister and Bert — but I called her 'sister,' not Anna, and I didn't know who 'Bert' was.

The years passed, and each of the family members went their separate ways, although Anna and the three older boys maintained some contact. Kenneth ended up in Oregon — where he still resides — while Anna, Walt, and Bert came to California. Ralph, unknown to the rest of his family, had died of diphtheria when he was 10.

"I made no attempt to locate Norman or Ralph," Mrs. Mathis recalled. "I felt they were probably better off than I was. I tried to forget as quick as I could — but I didn't forget, of course."

Norman's "new" parents didn't hide the fact that he was adopted from him, "but they didn't encourage me to find my real parents" either, he related. They also told him his real name was Hill, after schoolmates had taunted him for being adopted.

Following the death of his adoptive mother in 1948, Norman received the official decree of adoption, which traced his adoption proceedings back to the long-closed orphanage in Kansas. He then set about trying to find out what had happened to his real family.

Letters and advertisements were placed in newspapers in Oklahoma and Kansas, and attempts were made to get birth certificates from those states, all to no avail. No one had ever heard of a Norman Hill, born Oct. 22, 1913.

Correspondence over the next decade filled a notebook, with all answers — if any — coming back negative.

Following the death of Norman's first wife in 1959, he married his present wife, Marcella. And she took up where his first wife left off, writing to surviving members of the Hickman family, traveling to the communities he remembered, even going door-to-door on occasion seeking information. "We never got the right clue," she said.

But, finally, that clue came.

"I had written a letter to Norman's adopted sister last Christmas, told her about the whole search, and how terribly important it was for Norman to find his real family," she related.

She wrote back, with a detailed accounting of names and events in the Hickman family's history. Among those events was a family reunion in Missouri before Norman was adopted.

"Missouri was the clue," she said. "We did'nt know his real mother died in Missouri."

But from then on, things began to happen fast.

An instructor in a genealogical course at the community college in their home town of Modesto, Calif., suggested that she write the postmaster of Seneca, Mo., giving information about the three youngest boys and when they were taken to the orphanage. She did so, requesting the postmaster to give the letter to someone who had lived in the area since that time.

The postmaster did just that — even giving the letter to a family named Hill, although that family was not related to Norman's real family.

And then fate, coincidence — or call it Providence, if you will — stepped in.

"This family went to the same church that Norman's real cousin went to," recalled Mrs. Hickman. "They asked her if she remembered a Henry A. Hill (Norman's real father). She said no, but read the letter anyway.

"When she read the letter, she knew instantly that they were her cousins — Norman, Kenneth, and Ralph."

The cousin wrote back immediately, giving the name of Norman's older brothers and his older sister, Anna, and stating that she lived "somewhere in California near Mojave." She also gave the name and address of another cousin in California who she thought would know where Anna lived.

In short order Mrs. Hickman got a letter off to the other cousin in California who indeed did know where Anna Mathis lived — next door to her daughter in Lancaster.

Shortly before Easter, the phone rang at the Hickman home in Modesto. On the other end of the line from Lancaster was Anna Hill Mathis. After 61 years, Norman Hickman's search for his real family was almost over. Several days later, the Hickmans drove to Lancaster to make the reunion with his older sister complete. After an emotional greeting, there was one last phone call to make.

"We called Kenneth in Oregon," said Betty Riggs. "I said, 'You better sit down. Would you like to speak to a man named Norman?'"

"He said, 'Oh, my God, I wondered where he was!'" she related.

Norman Hickman's only regret was the knowledge that two of his three older brothers had died before his search ended: Walter about a dozen years ago, Bert about 10 years ago.

"Bert lived his last 10 years in Fresno, and we lived in Modesto — less than 100 miles away — but we never knew him," Mrs. Hickman reminisced.

And from Norman, Anna learned that the last brother — Ralph — had died when he was only 10 years old.

But the family circle, though smaller, was now complete.

Hickman is critical of adoption laws which prevent children from finding out who their parents are.

"The adoption papers are still sealed, and will stay that way," he commented. "If we had more information, we could have seen Walt and Bert before they died.

Norman and Anna, who bear a striking resemblance, will become the central figures in a huge Mathis-Hill family reunion in Lancaster this summer.

And as for Macella Hickman, who did much of the actual detective work over the past 17 years, another problem arises:

"Now that it's all over, I don't know what to do!"

BURSITIS: A PAINFUL EXPERIENCE FOR ANYONE

Although bursitis is most common among people in middle age and past, it can strike anyone. Indeed, the terms "housemaid's knee," "tennis elbow," and "working man's disorder" indicate the broad scope of sufferers.

Dr. H.L. Fisher D.C.

"Because it can occur in different parts of the body, the victim may think he has arthritis, rheumatism, or neuritis," explains Dr. Fisher, D.C., of the Fisher Chiropractic Office. "The pain may be similar in all of these, but the difference lies in the cause of the pain."

Dr. Fisher explained that tiny, fluid-filled sacks, called bursae, serve as a cushion whenever muscles, tendons, and joints need protection from friction, stress, or shock.

"If a bursa becomes irritated due to excessive stress, inflammation develops and we have bursitis," Dr. Fisher continues. "At this stage, pain is felt as friction develops between the bursa walls and the tendons and muscles which are no longer cushioned by fluid."

The good Doctor pointed out that if bursitis is not treated quickly and effectively, the victim may soon find that even limited movement in the affected area is painful. At first, the pain may be a gnawing ache, eventually blossoming into a sharp and excruciating agony. Such simple acts as combing the hair, or putting on a coat, become difficult if a shoulder bursa is involved.

"As far as treatment is concerned, the inflammation must be reduced quickly and effectively," concludes Dr. Fisher. "If care is obtained when pain first develops, there's a good chance this painful condition can be nipped in the bud."

PITZER COLLEGE is one of four colleges in the United States selected by the National Association of Bank Women (NABW) to offer a degree for women in the banking industry.

Founded in 1921, the NABW is an organization of banking executives working toward greater career opportunities for all women in banking.

The NABW/Pitzer program is designed expressly for the woman who is committed to a full-time career in banking and who wishes to pursue a bachelor's degree in a management-related field without interrupting her career.

Pitzer is the latest college to be added and will be the only college on the West Coast participating in the NABW program.

Other colleges offering this program are Simmons College in Boston, Mass.; Mundelein College, Chicago, Ill.; and Florida State University, Tallahassee, Fla.

Central to the banking woman's program, and a degree requirement, are management sessions. Held on each campus twice a year for two weeks, these sessions are specially designed to equip banking women to meet the increasing demands of management.

Beginning in January, 1978, management sessions will be offered on the Pitzer campus in January and June of each year. Utilizing appropriate faculty from all the Claremont Colleges, these sessions will be devoted primarily to such subjects as organizational behavior, economics, statistics, mathematics and accounting, although there also will be courses offered in the humanities and social sciences.

Taking two and one-half years to complete, these courses comprise 30 per cent of the banking woman's academic work. Completion of the remaining 70 per cent of work required for a bachelor of arts degree at Pitzer would be in the area of the student's concentration and the liberal arts.

CITRUS COLLEGE Alumni Association honored an outstanding Citrus College alumnus and three graduating students at commencement exercises.

Chosen to receive the Citrus College Alumni Achievement Award was Roland E. Knapp, a Citrus College student in 1939-40 who now serves as executive vice president of Desert Hospital Foundation and development director of Desert Hospital, Palm Springs. This award has been presented each year since 1963 to an outstanding Citrus College alumnus.

Graduating students who received $100 Alumni Association scholarships were Mark Wright, Azusa, who received the Edmund O. Smyth award; Adam Kaplan, Claremont, instrumental music award; and Jeffrey Reck, Glendora, drama award.

Grants amounting to $177,750 to 33 Southern California institutions are announced by Union Pacific Foundation.

Charles N. Olsen, newly elected president of the New York-based foundation, handed checks to representatives of Good Samaritan Hospital, The Music Center Foundation, California Institute of Technology, Braille Institute, John Tracy Clinic, Children's Hospital, Huntington Library and Huntington Memorial Hospital of Pasadena.

Other schools sharing grants are HARVEY MUDD, POMONA and PITZER COLLEGES along with CLAREMONT COLLEGES LIBRARY; University of Redlands; Independent Colleges of Southern California; USC and Occidental College, Los Angeles.

Sheryl Miller, associate professor of anthropology at PITZER COLLEGE, will spend August and September in Africa, excavating Later Stone Age sites in the Rift Valley of Kenya and on the East African Plateau:

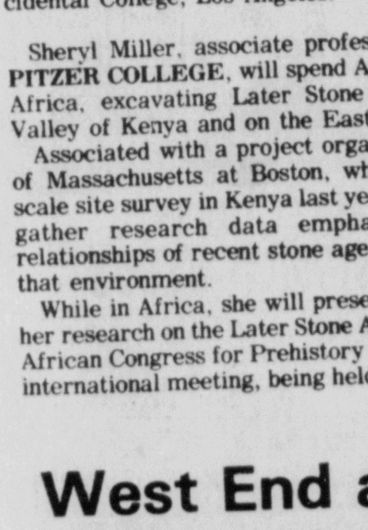

Associated with a project organized by the University of Massachusetts at Boston, which conducted a large-scale site survey in Kenya last year, Professor Miller will gather research data emphasizing the ecological relationships of recent stone age people in that area with that environment.

While in Africa, she will present a paper summarizing her research on the Later Stone Age of Malawi, at the Pan African Congress for Prehistory and Quanternary Studies international meeting, being held Sept. 5 to 10 in Nairobi.

West End activist resigns Utah post

Armando Navarro, longtime West End community activist, has submitted his resignation as assistant professor of political science to the University of Utah.

Navarro has been on an official leave of absence from the university staff since December, serving as executive director of the National Institute for Community Development headquartered in San Bernardino. Eduardo Hernandez, assistant director of the institute and a colleague of Navarro's at the university, has also resigned from his position as assistant history professor.

ARMANDO NAVARRO

Navarro became involved in the West End as chairman of the Chicano Negotiating Committee in dealings with the Chaffey district school board and as area coordinator of La Raza Unida (The United People). He also founded the Cucamonga-Upland Chapter of the Mexican-American Political Association (MAPA).

He received a bachelor degree from Claremont Men's College, graduating with honors, and a doctorate in political science from UC Riverside. Navarro joined the University of Utah staff in September 1974.

While in Utah, he organized several activities oriented toward the Chicano, including a Chicano Awareness Week that featured national Chicano leaders; produced a television show 'Aztlan: Ayer, Manana, Hoy''; directed a leadership training program sponsored by the Hickley Institute of Politics and funded by the Rockefeller Foundation; and helped organize the 1976 National Chicano Forum.

Hernandez was involved in many of these activities and had charge of production for the television program.

Under the auspices of the institute, Navarro's future plans include Project National Mobilization, a national effort to deal with Chicano issues; Operation Organize, a revitalization series directed toward community organizations and youth in the West End and San Bernardino County; and a feasibility study in the West End to research the establishment of a cooperative market in Ontario or Pomona to serve the region's poor.

Pines, 38, outlined his goals for the next four years at a City Hall inauguration ceremony Thursday. Superior Court Judge Arthur Alarcon, who administered the attorney's oath of office, described Pines as "a man of great intergrity and tremendous courage."

Too many 'crashers'

CB parties cause for concern

By M. MEWHINNEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Bored? Looking for some action? Flip on your CB radio, chances are there's a party just around the corner.

That's exactly what many teen-agers are doing these days, and police in some places fear the problem will get worse with the warm weather and more parties — and more party crashers.

In the San Fernando Valley, for instance, police say it's not uncommon for a party host who invited 50 to his bash to find 400-500 revelers at the front door, thanks to the Citizens Band.

Last year, officers say, one hapless host was overwhelmed by 1,600 uninvited guests, many of whom had heard about the party over the CB airwaves.

'We've had calls for help from people who couldn't get out of their houses because of the large number of party crashers," said Capt. Glenn Levant of the Los Angeles Police Department's Devonshire Division in the upper middle-class north Valley.

"These party crashers, most of whom are in the age group of junior high to about 25, bring their own booze or marijuana, and often devastate the neighborhood," Levant said.

Levant stressed most of the party crashers are not members of organized Citizens Band radio clubs, but more typically are affluent teen-agers who like to use the CB radios in their cars merely to gossip with their friends.

These teen-age talkers, prevented by their parents from lengthy conversations on the family phone, carry on longwinded discussions from the front seat of their automobiles, police say, clogging the airwaves with chitchat.

Often when the rowdy guests are asked to leave, the host is answered with a shower of beer cans and bottles of various beverages.

While admitting there are limits to what a party host may do to prevent such occurences, Levant suggests several ways to lessen the chance of having a party crashed.

He recommends having a guest list, sending out invitations, and admitting only those persons who are invited.

If uninvited guests arrive, Levant suggests the host refuse to admit them in the hopes they will put the word out over the airwaves that the party is closed to all but those bearing invitations.

Pre-planned activities are a good idea for controlling a party, Levant said, as is making sure there is adult supervision if the parents plan to be away during the party.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks overcame earlier weaknesses to push higher Tuesday in some of the slowest trading of the year following Monday's Fourth of July holiday.

Analysts said there was little in the news background to influence the market in any direction. There was some concern about an economic slowdown following last week's report of the first decline in four months in the govenment's leading economic indicators.

But the Carter administration, in an official updating of earlier forecasts, said the Gross National Product would rise at a 5.1 per cent rate this year instead of 4.9 originally predicted.

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average, off about two points at the outset, was up 1.95 points to 914.60 shortly before noon EDT. The Dow lost 3.65 points Friday and 17.05 overall last week.

Advances led declines, 612 to 479, among the 1,615 issues crossing the tape. The 524 unchanged reflected considerable investor uncertainty.

Volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 7,100,000 shares, down from the 9,200,000 traded during the same period Friday.

Hilton Hotels was the most active NYSE issue, off ¾ to 19⅝ following a block trade of 284,400 shares at 19⅝. Coastal States Gas followed, off ¾ to 21. Mesa Petroleum was third, up 1 to 39⅞.

Bangor Punta, a 2⅜-point winner Friday, was ahead another ⅜. Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. has expressed an interest in buying a substantial stake in Bangor Punta.

Cabot Corp. was ahead 1⅜. The company was mentioned favorably in Barron's, the financial weekly magazine.

Smith's Transfer was ahead ⅜ after the company reported its second quarter earnings climbed to $1.01 a share from 74 cents a year ago.

Prices were higher in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Carnation Co. was the most active issue, unchanged at 37. Systems Engineering followed, up ½ to 6¾. Houston Oil & Minerals was third, up ⅞ to 40⅜.

SPB's chief economist minimizes B1 decision

LOS ANGELES (BW) — "President Carter's decision not to approve production of the B-1 bomber shouldn't have an immediate or long-range serious economic impact on California," said Security Pacific Bank's chief economist.

"This is not to deny, however, that the decision is a blow to the companies and people directly involved," said senior vice president Dr. Robert T. Parry, administrator of the bank's economic department, in his statement following President Carter's Washington news conference where the President announced his decision not to proceed with production of the Rockwell B-1 bomber.

"While it's true that the administration's decision came as somewhat of a surprise — since many had felt that limited production would be approved — our economic forecast was developed with the view that production might not be approved," Parry said. "Therefore, we see no reason to change our forecast of the state's economic outlook.

"That forecast indicates that as a result of the overall improving economic picture, California's employment for all of 1977 should rise substantially above last year's level — up by approximately 3.8 per cent to almost 9.2 million," Parry said.

"At the same time, the state's jobless rate should reflect some improvement over last year's average — easing down to just under 8 per cent compared with the 1976 average of over 9 per cent."

Parry explained that, following the major aerospace cutback of the late 1960s, California's economy became much more diversified and less dependent upon aerospace production and spending.

"Thus, the impact of Carter's announcement is not going to affect our broad-based economy. If full production had been approved, at best by the 1980s the B-1 bomber project would have meant an addition of about 20,000 jobs to the aerospace industry."

Barbara now 'cooks' at cabarets

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) — We won't ever forgive what Barbara Cook has done because, for the life of us, we can't understand it.

So like persistent gnats, we stop her on the street or call her on radio talk shows and say, for heaven's sake, Barbara — how could you let yourself get so fat? You used to be so thin and beautiful.

Or we don't say anything. We sit in the audience in a chic cabaret like New York's Reno Sweeney and listen to her sing in a pure, perfect voice. Then we glance at her — 5'4", blonde, easily twice the 106 pounds she was in 1957 when she won Broadway's Tony Award for the role of Marian the Librarian in "The Music Man." And we look at her with distaste.

But Ms. Cook, 49, a star of the country's cabaret circuit, says hostility doesn't come much from the audience. It comes when she's not performing.

"Fat people are terribly discriminated against in this country," she says, fidgeting with a piece of paper, sitting in a booth in a coffee shop near Lincoln Center.

"People think they can say anything to fat people because they associate fatness with sloth and sloppiness. I'm always shocked. I never expect to be attacked so I'm not ready to have to respond, but on that radio talk show I mentioned, I finally said to the caller, you're rude as hell.

"Still, I haven't really had to deal with that too much," she insists. And anyway, her weight doesn't really bother her. Probably it just seems that she treads softly on the word "fat," and maybe a moment ago she didn't really pull her yellow cardigan around her protectively when we moved through the restaurant to a quieter booth.

Chances are she wouldn't even have lost 50 pounds if she hadn't developed a form of diabetes last summer and her doctor put her on a diet and, she says, "I started being good to myself."

"Obviously I never would have gotten musical comedy leads in the '50s and '60s if I'd been fat," she goes on, referring to her acclaimed performances in New York City Center productions of "The King and I," "Carousel," etc.; and, on Broadway, "Plain and Fancy," and Leonard Bernstein's "Candide," whose original cast album has become a collector's item.

"And my weight has probably kept me off television and out of movies . . ." But, so what? She's working steadily in clubs now. And her first studio album for Columbia, called "As of Today," was just released.

Think what you will, she's happier than ever performing as herself to a cult audience — partly inherited from Judy Garland, perhaps — who love the way she throws her arms out, her head back and fills the room with her own sound of Rodgers and Hart or Janis Ian or anyone else she's inclined to sing.

And call her evasive, if you want. She just doesn't know why she gained all that weight. "I've had 82,000 years of therapy and I still don't completely understand it. At the time I thought it was self-destructive."

It was arouund 1966 — she was divorced in '65 — and she was doing "Showboat" at City Center. "I was almost 40 years old and still playing an ingenue. I came out on that boat one day and thought, what is my life adding up to? Do I really want to stand up here and sing the rest of my life?"

There and then the energy that took her from Atlanta to New York at the age of 20, that kept her working in the post office and typing for Shell Oil between engagements, failed.

She simply retreated somewhere inside herself and stood perfectly still.

"I worked less," she says euphemistically. "I was alone most of the day because my son was in school and I read The New York Times literally from beginning to end, and thought a lot and really went through a period of growth."

And she ate enough to kill the ingenue once and for all, and maybe some of her fears.

"When I think of how insecure I was as a young girl, I don't know how I could have gone on stage except there was a certain unshakeable belief that I had something. But I can't tell you the anxiety I had about doing the right thing — even the idea of placing a telephone call right, you know, with the operator, this unseen voice . . ."

HAPPIER NOW — Barbara Cook, now singing in cabarets, has gained many pounds and confidence.

Frankl to play at Bowl

Pianist Peter Frankl will make his Hollywood Bowl debut with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in a concert at 8:30 p.m. July 14.

With the orchestra under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf, the Hungarian-born Frankl will play the Piano Concerto No. 3 by Hungarian composer, Bela Bartok. (Bartok is one of Summer Festival 77's two featured composers, the other being Tchaikovsky.)

Frankl, who makes his home in London, has appeared frequently, and to consistent acclaim, with all the leading orchestras of Europe under such conductors as Abbado, Boulez and Solti. In America he has been soloist with such orchestras as the Boston Symphony and Cleveland Orchestra; he has also been highly praised as a recitalist and chamber music player. He has toured in Australia, South Africa, South America, and Japan, and appears at important music festivals.

The remainder of the July 14 program lists a suite from Prokofieff's ballet score, "Romeo and Juliet," and Ravel's "La Velse."

Joyce Brothers

Mother is a drinker

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I'm 15, an only child and there's nobody I can talk to because I want to remain anonymous. I don't want to hurt my mother or embarrass her more than she already is. She sneaks drinks. She doesn't go out of the house but she stocks up enough booze here to last forever if she were just a normal drinker. It bothers me that she not only won't recognize or admit it but she lies all the time. She tells me one thing at night and the next morning she either forgets she's told me or else she tells me something completely different. She doesn't go out much, but I can't invite my friends in and I worry about leaving her alone because she falls. I want to help her but I don't know how. I think our doctor knows but he hasn't been able to help her and we don't belong to any church. — C.R.

DEAR C.R.: There's an organization called Ala-Teen that was formed to help the children of alcoholics cope with and learn about their parents. I'd suggest you call the local chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous and ask if there's a branch of Ala-Teen in your community. If there isn't they'll refer you to AlaNon, an organization to help persons who are emotionally close to an individual who suffers from alcoholism. Don't hesitate to explain your problem to Alcoholics Anonymous. They will understand and respect your desire to protect your mother. They will also be able to offer some of the help she and you need.

Alcoholism is a treatable disease. When your mother lies, she doesn't know what she's doing. Don't despair. There is a way to get help.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My girlfriend and I have been living together for almost two years and now we're having as many problems as a married couple. We thought this couldn't happen. We made the big mistake of sharing real estate, furniture, and even a car and a dog. How do we divide this when we split? That seems to be what's coming, though we still have some love for each other. It probably sounds crazy but it's easier to stay together than to go through the hassle of busting up. Any suggestions on how to patch up? — W.K.

DEAR W.K.: I don't think anyone should stay in a relationship only to protect property or possessions. On the other hand, some persons use these as excuses to stay married, or live with someone. They find it easier to admit their attachment to a car or a house, than to face the fact that they can love or care deeply for another human being.

I suggest that you each take an inventory of what you cherish in your relationship, what you expect of it and what you want in the future. Many young people today choose to avoid the altar because they're afraid of closeness and they don't want to take a chance on any kind of commitment. Dr. Fred Humphrey, president of the American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors, says those who go into these relationships thinking it won't hurt discover that when emotional problems develop, they can hurt just as much as if the couple were married. It's not the legal process of the divorce that hurts.

If you really want to hang onto this relationship and make it work, you might go to a marriage counselor.

Montclair-Ontario Juniors name leaders

The Montclair-Ontario Junior Women's Club members have begun their 11th year of community service under the leadership of Mrs. Sue Yoakum, club president.

Mrs. Yoakum was installed president by her sister, Mrs. Patti Lee, at a recent dinner held in La Verne.

Other officers seated were: Mmes. Jackie Zobrist, first vice president; Darlene Edwards, second vice president; Rachel Riley, secretary; Carol Diess, treasurer; Daine Nelson, parliamentarian; Margaret Carroll, coordinator; and May Tikfesi, associate coordinator. Mrs. Sandir Navas will serve as inspiration chairman.

Mrs. Yoakum was also selected by the membership as the "Woman of the Year" for the 1976-77 year.

The club won first place in the district competition and third place on the state level for the work in federation, leadership and membership. The members also won first place in district and third place on state level for the annual health fair and support of the Heart Association and Family Practice Clinic in Ontario.

MRS. SUE YOAKUM

Social activity scheduled

The strong links between the Diamond Bar Junior Women's Club and its sponsoring club, the Diamond Bar Women's Club, are reinforced from time to time by social gatherings.

One of the most enjoyed of these events is the annual bowling contest between the two clubs. This year the event will be held July 11 at the Landmark Bowl in Pomona.

Bowling is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Sharon Tanzer will host a luncheon for the two teams after the meet.

To find out more about the Juniors interested persons may call Sandy Fine, 598-2563, or Marolyn Hoskins, 595-2485.

Broiler industry growing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The broiler industry is making an increasingly important contribution to the state's farm income, reports North Carolina State University's School of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

In 1975 approximately 284 million broilers were produced in the state and the goal for 1982 is 368 million broilers.

Recipient of name grant award revealed

The recipient of the 1977 name grant award given by Pomona Valley Branch, American Association of University Women, at a recent luncheon held at Claremont Presbyterian Church is Mrs. Barbara Sargent, resident of Pilgrim Place in Claremont.

Mrs. Sargent has achieved prominence for her work with the YWCA from New York to South America. She is now serving Pomona Valley as executive director of the YWCA.

She attended Washburn College and graduated from the University of Colorado at Boulder. After teaching in New Mexico and Colorado for three years, she attended the national training school for YWCA executive secretaries.

As executive secretary for the Y she went to Oklahoma City, Okla., then to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where she established the first cafeteria in South America. There she married Joseph Sargent and later moved back to this country. In 1954 she was employed by the Johnson Foundation to work with scholarships, fellowships and grants program.

She came to Claremont in 1962. She has served as treasurer and auditor of Pomona Valley Branch, AAUW.

In her name a $500 grand was made to the state AAUW for the Educational Foundation for this year.

Program gives dieters education in nutrition

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Understanding your own body is the secret of gaining weight, losing weight or just maintaining it. On that theory Thelma J. Wayler, a nutrition education specialist, established her successful school of weight control in Vermont. Originally a summer program, the three-year-old school has expanded recently to programs over a full year.

Learning what makes one fat, skinny or whatever also can provide college credits.

"We try to help people identify eating and activity behavioral problems to help them come up with self - modification techniques in an 'you are going to like you' approach. Overweight people really do not like themselves. They just think they do," Mrs. Wayler maintains.

An associate professor of nutrition eduation now on leave from Long Island University, Mrs. Wayler served a dietetic internship at the Jewish Hospital in Brooklyn.

In determining what people like to eat, the self-improvement school begins to identify the problems that must be faced.

The way people eat — for example, in front of television — can provide clues. The problem may be an habitual two-hour eating binge such as midnight snacking rather than a 24-hour nibbling problem. Then, too, people eat when they are happy, sad, anxious. The whole thing must be brought to a conscious level, she explained.

"Each food tray becomes a visual aid in terms of portion sizes. We don't think about calories. A veal portion is 5 ounces, beef is 4 ounces. It is a nice plan of saturated and unsaturated foods that can become an easy pattern of eating," she said.

The Green Mountain Weight Control Community for Young Women (18 to 55) which Mrs. Wayler directs began as an eight-week experiment on the campus of Green Mountain College at Poultney, Vt, the credit-granting institution. The enrollment now may be from one to four months for the nutrition, behavior, body-awareness program, which some other colleges also will accept for college credit.

"Like many people involved in nutritional and metabolic experiments, I had a dream," she relates. "I wanted to bring together many things — nutition, education, eating behavior modification and exercises — that would be professionally conceived and professionally implemented with specialists at the head of each area."

In addition to learning about nutrition and the foods essential to health, students hear lectures on fad diets, body composition, fat cells and other aspects of nutrition. The physiology of exercise is stressed.

"Everyone is required to take muscular and skeletal strength exercises that are compatible with her age, weight, fitness level and needs. The female body seems to limit itself as to what it can comfortably do and women should learn what their bodies can do," Mrs. Wayler says. "They can't flippantly decide to jog one day. Some people may do no more than walk. Others may do 20 push-ups."

The community school is not a spa, she emphasizes, and it is not a place to be pampered. Women are encouraged to eat in nearby restaurants as long as they can accept the responsibility.

"They learn that as long as they are aware of what they are doing, a piece of chocolate need not be a ruination if they have the need," she says. "Ditto a martini. Education will provide the knowledge of how to cope. "Then, too, there is the freedom of walking around in shorts or a bikini. Nobody will stare at them. This idea also attracts people who are just interested in learning how to eat nutritionally, even though they don't have weight to lose."

Allowances provide Learning experience

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — A properly planned allowance given to children in their formative years can help lead to financially solvent adulthood, believes the president of a national financial services organization based here.

"A child's weekly allowance can be used as an important tool in successfully shaping his adult life," says W. Scane Bowler of Pioneer Western Corp. "The entire spectrum of money management — saving, investing and budgeting — can be taught through that simple process."

Bowler offers these suggestions on allocating the allowance:

— Determine actual monetary needs. Discuss those needs with the youngsters. Make sure they fully understand why and how you have arrived at a specific sum.

— Promise this amount on a regular basis and keep that promise, or don't promise it at all.

— Be consistent. Rules need not be ironclad — but they should be firm. The child must realize that he or she has to live within the allowance.

— Don't put a dollar sign on achievement. Monetary rewards should not be as ociated with good behavior or good grades in school. This can lead to unnatural pressures for money — in some cases, it can even be a cause of cheating.

— Do not be overly concerned with what other parents in the neighborhood are giving their children. Do not permit allowances to "follow the Joneses."

— By all means, encourage the children to keep track of their expenditures as well as their income. This will act as a directional signal for future budgeting and savings.

— Carefully manage your own finances. Children are quick to pick up their parents' habits — both good and bad.

Cookout cleanup is simple

Ever since the first caveman put a piece of meat into the fire and invited his neighbors to dinner, people have enjoyed eating out. Today paper plates, cups and napkins, plastic knives, forks and other disposables make the cookout a homeaker's dream.

The only cloud on the horizon, aside from actual ones, is cleaning the barbecue grill. If that's your problem, take heart, says Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist. "With a foam cleaner such as Big Wally, cleanup is easier.

Start by taking the grill apart. Lay the parts on the ground and spray with the foam cleaner. Let the foam do the work for you, then take the garden hose and rinse. Stubborn, baked-on grime may need a little more effort. Spray those areas a second time, then rub with steel wool or a stiff-bristle brush, if necessary, and rinse with the hose once more. Then you're ready for summer cookout fun."

Brunch charted Sunday

A champagne brunch will head the summer activities planned by Walnut Valley Women's Club on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. It will feature swimming, bunco and awards. The brunch will be held in the Ron Chambers home in Walnut.

Reservations can be made by calling 965-7603 or 595-5830. Assisting Mrs. Chambers with arrangements are Mmes. Louise Starr, Betty Howard, Carollyn Lee, Sandra Paul and Margaret Laughter.

Ryan calm about record

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — — Nolan Ryan likes to win, but he is unimpressed by his strikeout records.

Ryan (11-7) struck out 11 Monday night and won a 4-2 decision over the Oakland Athletics. It marked the 97th time he has fanned 10 or more in a game and it ties the record set by Sandy Koufax with the Dodgers.

The fans, 41,303, were excited and so were the writers and broadcasters as they crowded around the Texan after the game.

Chewing on his gum slowly, the phlegmatic Ryan was his usual quiet self. The following exchange took place.

Writer (breathlessly): Does tying Koufax' record excite you?

Ryan (stolidly): "No. Not really. I would say it indicates consistency. I think it indicates the stuff I've taken to the mound.

2nd writer (pleadingly): Didn't you think about the record when you were out there?

Ryan (Phlegmatically): "Well, I didn't have that much of a fastball tonight and I had trouble with my curve ball early in the game.

"I wasn't really thinking much about the record. I don't feel it indicates too much other than I've consistently gone out there with good stuff."

Third writer (disappointedly): Well don't all those strikeouts mean something to you?

Ryan (retrospectively): "Strikeouts are a part of my game. I just wish I'd won all those games when I struck out 10 or more. A lot of them I lost."

4th writer (desperately): Won't it mean something to you 10 or 15 years from now?

Ryan (casually): "I don't know. Maybe. But someone will come along and break the records I set."

First writer again (resignedly): Did you ever see Koufax pitch or think you'd tie or break any of his records?

Ryan (thoughtfully): "I saw Koufax in Houston when he pitched for the Dodgers. He was the best pitcher I ever saw. I never thought I'd match any of his records."

2nd writer again (repetitiously): What did you think about the standing ovations (two) when you got the 10th strikeout?

Ryan (quietly): "These fans have supported me well. It pleased me to tie the record with such a good crowd on hand. I just wish I'd had a little better stuff."

Then Ryan excused himself and headed for the shower.

The writers hunted other quarry. Manager Norm Sherry, a one-time Dodger catcher, was asked to compare Ryan with Koufax.

"Sandy did it with less effort," said Sherry. "Nolan does it with his legs. He tries harder with his legs . . . works harder with them and on them . . . than any pitcher I've ever seen.

"He grinds it out."

Rookie Rance Mulliniks drove in three runs. The young shortstop had a perfect night at the plate with his first major league home run and two singles good for three runs in three at-bats.

Mulliniks raised his average 94 points to .214.

Third baseman Dave Chalk also had three hits, all singles, and batted in the other run. Chalk is hitting .295.

The large crowd, second largest this year, was drawn by the double attraction of Ryan pitching and trying to tie Koufax' mark and a post-game fireworks show.

It was symbolic of the Angels' luck and their season that the wind was blowing in so that when three huge ground displays of free-agent acquisitions Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Don Baylor were set off, they were almost immediately obliterated from view by heavy ground smoke which caused a number of people to vacate the field and adjacent stands.

ANGEL ANGLES — Wayne Simpson (3-5) and Vida Blue (6-9) will be the pitchers as the five-game series winds up tonight. It is the Athletics' last appearance this year.

The attendance Monday night put the Halos 234,835 ahead of last year. They went over the 800 thousand mark at 805,344.

Ryan now has 211 strikeouts for the season in 170 innings.

The victory put the Halos a game over the .500 mark at 38-37. It's their best record at this time since 1970.

Former Cal Poly star Mitch Page extended his hitting streak to seven games.

Crum studies UCLA offer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville basketball Coach Denny Crum was expected to announce today whether he will accept an offer to become head coach at UCLA, his alma mater.

The 40-year-old California native, once an assistant to former Bruins Coach John Wooden, was expected to reveal his decision after meeting this morning with Louisville Athletic Director Dave Hart.

Hart left his office this morning and told a newsman he was en route to meet with Crum, but Hart would not reveal the location of the meeting. He said the school would have nothing to say until this afternoon.

The Newark Star-Ledger, in its Tuesday editions, quoted a highly-placed source as saying that Crum would accept the position. But Crum, reached me by the paper, said "I have not made my decision yet."

Crum would succeed Gene Bartow, who resigned last month to become basketball coach and athletic director for the University of Alabama at Birmingham. Crum has said he was offered the UCLA coaching position last week by the school's athletic director, J.D. Morgan.

Crum has three years remaining on a five-year contract, but Hart said in an interview that "we'll certainly let him go if he wishes."

Despite his coaching success here, Hart says Louisville is not prepared to enter a "bidding war" for Crum's services.

"We don't want to get to that and I don't think UCLA does, either," he said. "We will try to do everything we can to keep him, but we have to stay within reason. We've told him what we can do. We're not the wealthiest school; we're not in bad shape either."

Hart said he doesn't know which way his coach is leaning, but indicated that Crum has a great incentive to accept the UCLA offer.

"I think that everybody in the sports world sort of looks back on going back to their alma mater and their school and their friends and so on," Hart said. "And everybody who's ever played for anyone thinks of coaching his alma mater."

Corbett wants out at Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Brad Corbett, the free-wheeling, big-spending majority owner of the Texas Rangers, has had it with big league baseball players "who don't give a darn" and has put his stock on sale for about $6 million.

Corbett, who runs a multimillion dollar plastic pipe business, said, "I'm selling the team...I just can't stand it anymore. It's killing me."

His emotional remarks came Monday night after the Rangers suffered a 1-0 defeat by the Kansas City Royals before a standing-room holiday crowd of 34,660.

"I've got players that I put complete confidence and faith in and I've found that those players just don't give a darn," stormed Corbett. "They don't care about anything but drawing a paycheck."

Corbett said that his actions were "keyed on an article in the Fort Worth Star Telegram...it said I was bringing shame on the city of Fort Worth.

"I've got to think that I'm responsible for what's wrong with the team," said Corbett, who took over 60 per cent control of the team in 1974. "I guess some people have been right—my meddling has hurt because I know this."

Post 30 wins Legion crown

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Woddy Hansen won his fourth tournament title in the 17-year history of the Upland Tournament as his Post 30 outfit out fought a tough Arcadia team to post a thrilling 3-2 decision in 10 innings Monday night.

Pomona entered the 17th Annual Upland American Legion Tournament tied with West Covina with three tournament crowns. Post 30 won back-to-back crowns in 1964-'65 and in 1974. West Covina claimed the title in '70, '72, and '76.

With Pomona claiming the crown, Brian Donahue was named the tourney's most valuable player. Chris Davis was selected as the first recipient of the Don Kaltenbaugh Memorial trophy for the best infielder in the four-day tournament.

Donahue collected six hits in the tournament as he knocked in six runs for the Gems in three games. He stroked two doubles and four singles and was named the MVP despite the tremendous pitching effort of Todd Bell in the championship game.

"It's an honor to be picked as the tournament's MVP," noted the 6 foot, 170 pounder who graduated from Pomona High in June.

"It was a super surprise to be selected," he added. "I've just enjoyed playing with these guys all year. I've come quite aways in a short period of time playing with these guys. If I could, I'd give this trophy to all of them (Post 30 outfit) as it was a team effort in winning the title."

Davis was outstanding at short as he stopped Arcadia from registering a base hit off of Bell several times through the first five innings of the contest. Bell had a no-hitter until the fifth and Davis made two tremendous fielding plays on hard skidding smashes to keep the Arcadia squad hittless in the early innings.

"Davis played some outstanding shortstop in the tournament," Hansen said after the classic extra-inning battle which was clearly the best contest of many games played over the Fourth of July weekend holiday at Upland Memorial Park.

Davis commented about the award: "It's really a great honor. I wasn't expecting the award as — there were a lot of good infielders in the tournament."

The consolation title was won rather easily by Ontario after an eight run explosion in the first inning off of Redlands 106 hurler Edward Munn. Ontario, which had already beaten Redlands 13-2 and 5-4, knocked out 17 hits in recording a 10-0 victory over the Post 112 outfit.

The Pomona-Arcadia clash is a game that will live for a long time in the minds of the fans who attended the championship game. The excitement and drama of who would win the 10 inning contest outclassed the brilliant colored fireworks that dominated the sky east of the ballpark at the Ontario Motor Speedway.

What people will remember for some time is the 10 innings hurled by Bell. He pitched no-hit ball for four innings before allowing two hits in the fifth. He held Arcadia to just three hits as he fanned 13 batters. The Post 247 batters were striking out on a sharp breaking curveball as he racked up at least one strikeout in every inning except the 10th.

Arcadia took a 1-0 advantage in the third on some shoddy defense by Pomona. But Donahue put Bell ahead 2-1 with a fourth inning two-run double. It gave Bell back the lead with the no-hit bid still in tact. Relief pitcher Glen Newton broke up the second no-hit bid within 24 hours with a double into the leftfield corner. He tied the contest at 2-2 when he scored on a hit by Bob Commings. Pomona failed to score in its two remaining regulation at bats to send the contest into extra innings.

The next three innings saw the two clubs waste golden opportunities to claim the contest.

Arcadia had a runner at second with two out in the eighth but Bell fanned Gary Forilla for the third out. In the ninth, Bell fanned Greg Braunwalder for the final out with the bases loaded.

Pomona had chances in the seventh when Art Avilla led off the inning with a drive into the gap in rightcenter. The rightfielder relayed the ball to the Arcadia second baseman who made a perfect throw to get the sliding Avila at third by 10 feet.

"Avila went to third on his own," noted Hansen. "He didn't look up at our base coach who was telling him to hold at second."

The play prolonged the game for at least one more inning. The eighth looked as if Pomona would get the winning run with Chapa and Tim Lambert at first and third but Donahue grounded weakly to first to kill the rally.

Base hits by Davis and Mike Keegan started the 10th for Pomona. After a walk to Reyes to load the bases, grounder Chapa hit a short to that went under the Arcadia fielder's glove for an error. The ball rolled out to leftfield and Pomona had the 1977 title.

Donahue (2-for-4), Chapa (2-for-5), and Lambert (2-for-3) paced Pomona's 11 hit attack. Pomona stranded 10 base runners in the contest.

Hansen over the victory remarked, "We hit the ball real good throughout the tournament. Our pitching was good. Lambert got a bit tired in Sunday's win but the best pitching effort by us was turned in tonight by Todd Bell. It's the longest he's pitched in a game for us."

Ontario won the contest in the first inning over Redlands. Ontario strung seven hits in a row as they sent 12 batters to the plate in the first off off Munn. Al Newman (triple), Darren Dilks (double) and Stan McDonald (a two-run double) had the big blows of the nine hit inning for the Post 112 club. McDonald's double just missed being a grandslam homerun as his blast slammed off the wooden planks of the leftfield wall.

Dan Crowe paced Ontario's 17 hit attack with four hits in four trips to the plate. Bob Fellhauer added three singles.

Art Rodriguez coasted to the victory as he hurled blanks at Redlands for seven innings. He allowed just five hits while fanning nine and walking two batters.

Cey, Dodgers punish Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ron Cey and the Los Angeles Dodgers have gone home, much to the relief of a San Francisco Giants pitching staff which felt anger, embarrassment and perhaps terror the past four days.

"We're playing good baseball, applying pressure to the clubs behind us," said Cey after threatening a National League hitting record Monday. "It feels good."

Don Sutton pitched his 45th big league shutout, a three-hitter, and Cey's streak of consecutive hits over three games reached nine — one short of the league record — before he struck out against Randy Moffitt in the ninth inning of a 4-0 victory which completed a series sweep.

"I wasn't even aware I was that close to a record," Cey said. "I knew I was 9-for-9 but I didn't know the league record was 10. There weren't any cheap hits in the streak, either, but you've got to be fortunate to do something like that. A lot of line drives are caught."

The third baseman, now hitting .295 with 71 runs batted in, added, "It was a big road trip for us. We went into Cincinnati and split, which took four games off the schedule for the Reds and put more pressure on them. Then we won seven out of eight against Atlanta and the Giants."

The Dodgers hit the halfway point of the season Wednesday night holding a big lead over the defending champion Reds in the NL West.

The Giants, in over their heads in the holiday weekend competition, are bad off in the standings, too, fourth by 20½ games.

"When that team gets a shutout, they've got to win," said Monday's loser, Ed Halicki.

Then the big right-hander, now 7-8, laughed at his own statement and said, "What I mean is that they're hitting so much better than last year."

In the four losses to the Dodgers, the Giants' pitchers allowed 34 runs and 60 hits. Cey had 11 hits and 10 RBI, including two Monday, to lead the attack.

Two homers in the latest victory — the season's first by Johnny Oates and No. 11 for Rick Monday — gave the Dodgers' 103 for the year compared to 91 all of last season.

"I don't feel as hot as Ron, but some of it must be rubbing off," said Oates, the reserve catcher who also had two singles Monday.

The San Francisco pitchers had generally shabby fielding behind them over the painful weekend, and Jim Barr reached the boiling point during Sunday's 10-7 loss, yelling at Gary Thomasson in the dugout after the outfielder had misplayed a ball.

Petty quickest at Firecracker

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "Old blue was flying, said Darrell Waltrip. "I was running after him, but there was no way anybody was gonna catch him."

Old Blue is Richard Petty, winner for the seventh time in major stock car races at Daytona International Speedway when he beat Waltrip by 17.7 seconds in the rain-interrupted Firecracker 400-miler Monday.

"We weren't the fastest, but we were the quickest," Petty said. "I mean the quickest getting back to the finish line. Some of those cars that go fast down the straights don't do as well in the corners."

The money incentive is still there for the six-time national champion on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) grand national circuit.

It wasn't only the $23,075 Petty won in the race, but the fact that it pulled him within 17 points of defending national champion Cale Yarborough in this year's race. Yarborough had mechanical trouble and had to settle for 24th place.

"When you win the national championship, you get $45,000 next year just to show up for all the 30 races," he said. "At the end of the season it means another $60,000 to $70,000. And that doesn't count endorsements. Cale got maybe $50,000 or $75,000 more on that after he won his first title."

Petty was leading after 205 miles, when the race was halted for hours by rain. Twenty three laps under caution to dry the track slowed the winner's speed to 142.716 miles an hour.

"You lose complete concentration in a break like that," Petty said. "I drank milk, signed autographs and told dirty jokes. It was like two races. The first half was strictly for exercise. You have to concentrate all over for the new game. It's new strategy."

Petty led 94 of the 160 laps. Eight drivers were involved in 34 lead changes but it was the skilled Petty crew that had the Dodge prepared for the 2.5 mile, 31-degree banked track.

Petty left behind the Chevrolets of Waltrip and third-place Benny Parsons as well as David Pearson's fourth-place Mercury.

A.J. Foyt, a contender in his Chevrolet until his final pit stop, was fifth.

"I just got behind on the last pit stop and never could catch back up," Foyt said. "Man, Petty was flying. He was running all the way around—into the corners, out of the corners and down the straightaways. He was flying."

Lasorda loses his restaurant

JEFFERSONVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A popular suburban Philadelphia dining spot owned by Los Angeles Dodgers' Manager Tom Lasorda has been destroyed by fire.

The blaze at Lasorda's Restaurant, in this Montgomery County community, was reported about 20 minutes before midnight Sunday, and declared under control in about 45 minutes.

The one-story wood and stone structure was reduced to stone walls. Two volunteer firemen were treated for smoke inhalation, but no serious injuries were reported.

The cause of the blaze was not disclosed.

Spending heavy at Hollypark

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The star attraction in a gala weekend of racing at Hollywood Park failed dismally but the race track echoed today with the jingling of a million-dollar three-day period that saw:

—J.O. Tobin and jockey Bill Shoemaker combine talents to win the $316,400 Swaps Stakes. A roaring crowd of 68,115 witnessed the first defeat in 10 starts for Triple Crown champion Seattle Slew, the 1-5 favorite.

—And the victory of Hunza Dancer in the traditional July Fourth feature, the $113,900 American Handicap on the lakeside grass course.

During the three days of racing, $17,381,979 was pushed through the parimutuel windows, the highest total for such a period in California racing history.

Not only was Seattle Slew beaten, but he finished fourth, a shocking 16 lengths behind J.O. Tobin. Affiliate, eight lengths behind the leader, nosed out Text for second place in the field of seven 3-year-olds.

There were no alibis from the Slew camp, only praise for George Pope's winning horse.

"Don't ever discount J.O. Tobin," said Slew's trainer Billy Turner, who today was back in New York. "He's a great horse."

Shoemaker had maintained all last week that he'd be surprised if J.O. Tobin didn't win the Swaps. A percentage of Sunday's crowd agreed, establishing the colt at a 3-1 choice.

J.O. Tobin, weighted at 120, made it wire-to-wire. Slew made it interesting for a while, but faded in the stretch under his 126 pounds.

"I knew we were beat into the first turn," said Slew's rider, Jean Cruguet.

"Physically, Slew was right; mentally he wasn't," said co-owner Mickey Taylor. "He just came up empty."

In 1977, Tobin has won three of five races and finished second once. He earned $194,900 Sunday, bringing his total to $304,316.

Cruguet had some consolation. He won the American Handicap on Hunza Dancer. The 5-year-old horse was a plane-mate from New York last week with Slew, but had better luck.

Cruguet got him in by a nose over Anne's Pretender. Legendaire was a neck back in the 118-mile run. Caucacus, the favorite, managed fourth in the field of 11.

Hunza Dancer's most recent victory was in the Bowling Green Handicap at Belmont Park. He raced in Europe in 1976. Victory here was worth $68,900 for owner Ravi Tikkoo, a New York shipping magnate

Cubs see big lead shrinking

By The Associated Press

It often is said that whoever is in first place on July 4 will win the pennant. That may have been the only comfort the Chicago Cubs got on Independence Day.

The Cubs dropped a doubleheader to the Montreal Expos Monday, 19-3 and 7-6, and saw their first-place lead shrink to four games over Philadelphia in the National League's East Division. The Cubs have lost six of their last seven games.

Montreal's first-game explosion was led by Ellis Valentine and Andre Dawson, each of whom drove in five runs. Meanwhile, Warren Cromartie had five hits, including three doubles.

Chicago outfielder-first baseman Larry Biittner made his major league pitching debut in the eighth inning of the game. Biittner came on with two men on base and was bombed for three homers, six runs and five hits in 1 1-3 innings.

"I was as surprised as anyone," said Biittner of Cubs Manager Herman Franks' decision to bring him on to pitch, even though Chicago trailed 11-2 at the time. "But I'll do it again if they want me to."

The Cubs probably won't want to use Biittner on the mound again since he surrendered three-run homers to Larry Parrish and Dawson and Valentine's second homer of the game—a two-run shot.

"I used him because I didn't have anyone else," said Franks, who was thrown out of the game in the ninth when he argued with plate umpire Terry Tata about an alleged beanball thrown by Biittner to Del Unser. "We have nine games in seven days. What did you expect me to do in a spot like that, bring in Bruce Sutter?"

Sutter is the Cubs' ace reliever.

Montreal captured the nightcap as Sam Mejias doubled, tripled and homered, driving in two runs and scoring three.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia beat New York 3-1; Pittsburgh swept a pair from St. Louis, 5-2 and 4-3; Los Angeles blanked San Francisco 4-0, handing the Giants their seventh consecutive loss; Atlanta edged Cincinnati 5-4, and Houston outscored San Diego, 12-7.

Phillies 3, Mets 1

Philadelphia won its fifth straight game before the largest crowd in the majors this season, 63,283. Jim Lonborg, 22, and Ron Reed combined on a six-hitter and Ollie Brown keyed a three-run third inning off Mets' starter Jerry Koosman, 6-9.

Brown was playing in place of regular left fielder Greg Luzinski, who was sidelined by an eye inflammation.

"I gotta earn my pay," said Brown. "I was coming out of the four hole (cleanup spot). You gotta do something there."

Pirates 5-4, Cardinals 2-3

On his 48th birthday, a local bakery gave Chuck Tanner a cake the size of the batter's box. Then the Pirates gave Tanner a better present with their doubleheader sweep of St. Louis.

The Pirates' opening-game victory ended a four-game losing string as Omar Moreno belted his fourth homer of the season and drove in three runs. Rich Gossage picked up his 14th save with 22-3 innings of hitless relief.

Dave Parker won the second game with a leadoff homer in the ninth inning.

"Hopefully these two games will shake us up and get us back on the right track," said Parker, who blasted a changeup by St. Louis reliever Rawly Eastwick far over the rightfield wall.

"We've had a lot of tough losses and two bad road trips," added Tanner, who was booed by the crowd of 22,810 when he decided to remove starter Jim Rooker in the opener. "Things have to change for us.

"Booing never bothers me," Tanner continued. "They paid to get in. I'm glad they were here. Shoot, I wish there were 50,000 out there that would have thought I was making a mistake."

Braves 5, Reds 4

Biff Pocoroba's three-run double with two out in the eighth inning gave the Braves their victory over Tom Seaver, 8-5, and the Reds.

Johnny Bench had put the Reds on top 3-2 with his 18th homer of the season in the top of the inning. Dan Driessen also homered for Cincinnati and Willie Montanez had a solo shot for Atlanta.

Phil Niekro, 8-9, picked up his eighth win in his last 10 decisions after an 0-7 start.

Astros 12, Padres 7

Jose Cruz drove in four runs with a single and two homers to spark Houston over San Diego. Cruz started his big night with an RBI single in the third as the Astros sent 11 men to the plate to score seven runs off Padre starter Tom Griffin and reliever Dave Wehrmeister.

After the Padres battled back to pull within 7-6, Cruz hit a two-run homer in the sixth and a solo homer in the seventh to keep Houston in control.

Pickle Ball hits Southland scene

By BRENT SHYER
PB Correspondent

Many sports enthusiasts are frequently found frustrated when filled tennis courts and extended waiting periods for athletic facilities foil game plans.

A novel, year-round sports concept has recently been formulated that will whittle those woes away.

A company called Sport Court of Southern California has now made it possible for families to have fun-filled recreation right in the comfort of their own backyards.

Bill Sharman, General Manager of the Los Angeles Lakers and former Boston Celtic star, and Tom Collins, who is a prominent personal financial manager for professional athletes are promoting a product bearing the company's name.

Sport Court is just that. It is a versatile, custom built court, one-third the size of a normal tennis court. It fits into your yard so that you may participate in such sports as basketball, volleyball, badminton, street hockey, and mini-soccer.

But probably the most unique and fun game that is being played currently on Sport Courts in So. Calif. is Pickle Ball.

Pickle Ball, a cross between tennis, badminton, and ping-pong, uses a green whiffle ball and wooden paddles.

The ball is hit diagonally across a net, which is about three feet high, onto the opposite side of the striped court. After the ball bounces once on the opponent's end, he must hit it back and the server must then let the ball bounce once prior to taking a swipe at it.

The game then shows some similarities to tennis, in that the ball is volleyed back and forth until someone misplays it. Points, 11 of which constitute a completed contest, are only scored when serving.

Pickle Ball can be a tough workout even for the most in-shape athletes due to swift maneuvering by the players.

At a recent showing of Sport Court at Sharman's Rolling Hills Estates home, former Laker guard Lucius Allen developed quite a healthy sweat from participating in a Pickle Ball doubles match.

For approximately $4695, a family may purchase a 20-foot by 42-foot fully-lit Sport Court. This includes solid concrete construction, weather-resistant outdoor carpeting, steel stanchions, a weather-proof nylon net, and a fiberglass NBA player association endorsed backboard.

Real tennis buffs optionally could buy a 10-foot rebound wall to be constructed at either end of the court's surface. The wall also can be used for handball, racquetball, and baseball pitching practice.

Sport Court has already become the rage in cities such as Seattle, San Francisco, and Houston. Originally it began in the Pacific Northwest and now is spreading internationally.

On Saturday, July 9, a demonstration of Sport Court will be held at the Holiday Inn of Ventura from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sharman and Allen, as well as other sports stars and celebrities, will be on hand to meet the public.

Those in attendance will have an opportunity to learn first-hand how to play the exciting game of Pickle Ball — a game that may be relished by many in the future.

Cash, wife lucky

DETROIT (AP) — Former Detroit Tigers first baseman Norm Cash says he and his wife are alive today because of a big car.

Cash and his wife, Dorothy, were recuperating at home Monday after narrowly escaping death Friday night when the car in which they were riding collided with a pickup truck near Owosso, Mich.

Winfield signs

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Outfielder Dave Winfield has signed a multi-year contract with the San Diego Padres, the team announced Monday, an agreement that reportedly will pay him $1.5 million.

"We met earlier in the day with Dave and Al Frohman (Winfield's agent) and were able to reach an agreement that both parties feel is a fair arrangement," said Padres President Buzzie Bavasi. "Now Dave can get down to concentrating solely on playing baseball."

Blues find buyer?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ralston Purina Co., one of the nation's largest corporations, is exploring the possible purchase of the National Hockey League's St. Louis Blues, a published report says.

Heavy burdens in the form of a $5-million Arena mortgage and unpaid city amusement taxes have caused the Blues' owners, Sidney Salomon Jr. and Sidney Salomon III, to seek a purchaser.

Ralston Purina, a leader in animal feed and pet food, reported sales of $3.39 billion and profits of $125.9 million during its last fiscal year. Its board chairman, R. Hal Dean, declined comment on purchase explorations.
